Sunday Accidents Claim 3 Lives

Local Men Die On County Roads

AIRCRAFT FATALITY—Virtually nothing remains of the engine and cockpit area of the 1946 single-engine Taylorcraft plane which claimed the life of 33-year-old David Valentine, Route 1, Stoutsville, and critically injured 54-year-old Charles Fletcher, Route 4. The aircraft was making a mock "bombing" run over the field where it dropped paper bags full of sand, when the engine stalled while making a right turn. The plane took a nose dive into a wheat stubble field behind the administration building. Sheriff and FAA Authorities are continuing investigation of the fatal accident.

Air Crash Kills Pilot

One man was killed and another critically injured in the crash of a light plane during a fly-in at the Pickaway County Veterans Memorial Airport, 6:45 p.m. Sunday.

David Valentine, 33, Route 1, Stoutsville, was pronounced dead at the scene, by County Coroner Dr. Ray Carroll, with massive injuries.

Charles Fletcher, 54, Route 4, was transferred to Doctor's North Hospital in Columbus listed in critical condition, with massive body injuries.

Fletcher was the pilot and Valentine the co-pilot of the dual control single-engine 1946 Taylorcraft plane, during the partially rained-out activities held at the airport.

Fletcher had been participating in the fly-in held at the airport Sunday, when he was apparently getting rid of extra sandbags loaded in the light craft.

The plane, traveling at a slow rate of speed, was approximately 200-feet off the ground when the engine stalled. It made a 180-degree turn and nosedived into a wheat stubble field, owned by Charles Kreisel, behind the administration building of the airport. Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, Deputy J. Phillip Brown, The Pickaway Township Fire Department and the Kingston Squad had to pull the aircraft down in the rear to enable authorities to get to the front of the craft.

Cutting instruments were then used to get to the mangled cockpit area in order to remove the victims who were trapped in the aircraft for 45 minutes.

Portuguese Showdown Seen Near

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Political moderates today continued to predict the removal of pro-Communist Premier Vasco Goncalves within days in the wake of more civilian demonstrations and show-of-strength military maneuvers by both sides in the power struggle.

Anti-Goncalves army units had access to most of the approaches to Lisbon, but a light artillery regiment reported to be one of the few units backing the premier commanded the main highway on the northern outskirts of the capital.

The pro-Goncalves regiment parked mobile howitzers at the gates of its barracks less than a mile from the Lisbon airport and stacked sandbags in defensive positions inside the camp. Anti-aircraft emplacements were manned by soldiers in camouflage uniforms.

At Leiria, 75 miles north of Lisbon, besieged Communists used fireworks and rifle grenades Sunday to drive back more than 300 anti-Communists trying to burn down their party headquarters.

The mob, which came from a Roman Catholic rally of 5,000 persons protesting the government's pro-Communist trend, ran for cover as 175 army commandos lined up in front of the party headquarters and fired into the air. There were no reports of injuries.

In Evora, 100 miles east of the capital, leftists were told at a rally to repay violence with violence. A leader of the pro-Communist Democratic Movement, Manuel Tengarrinha, said: "If it is necessary we will not hesitate to take up arms."

Nonaligned Nations Urged To Support Israeli Expulsion

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Nineteen Arab nations and the Palestine Liberation Organization asked the Third World conference opening here today to join in a demand for Israel's expulsion from the United Nations.

The request to the conference of 78 self-styled nonaligned nations, which defied warnings from the United States and came in the midst of a new U.S. peace effort in the Middle East, was unanimously adopted Sunday night at a four-hour Arab caucus, a Syrian spokesman said.

The Syrian official, Mouaffok el-Allaf, predicted the resolution would be adopted "by an overwhelming majority" of the conference.

This Syrian proposal and a Palestinian draft submitted earlier to the conference accused Israel of violating the U.N. charter by continuing to occupy Arab lands seized in the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

"If the Israelis understand the meaning of this resolution, then they will work for peace," said el-Allaf, indicating that the purpose of the proposal was to pressure the Israelis into relinquishing more territory.

The Arab proposals seemed likely to arouse the impatience of influential nations at the conference anxious to give priority to economic issues of more importance to them. There was considerable feeling that India and other non-Arab countries were primarily interested in forging a unified strategy for the special United Nations meeting on raw materials opening next week.

Some Africans said their delegations had reservations about the anti-Israeli campaign. Argentina among others was known to oppose it. Most of the foreign ministers also were keeping a close watch on developments in Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's latest shuttle diplomacy in the Middle East.

Meanwhile, delegates from four Communist Asian countries accused the United States of imperialist economic and political aggression in their area. The representatives of North Vietnam, Cambodia, Laos and North Korea charged the United States with responsibility for continuing military action in South Korea and demanded that South Korea's bid for membership in the nonaligned group be voted down.

A steering committee of 17 nations met Sunday but failed to announce any progress on membership questions.

Cleveland Storm Proves Fatal To 4

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Two 12-year-old boys were killed by lightning, a man was drowned, and a 9-year-old girl was believed drowned, sucked down a sewer in one of the worst storms to hit Cleveland in several years.

A police official said some streets buckled and some were literally torn apart because sewers were unable to handle water from the storm that dropped up to four inches of rain on northern Ohio Sunday.

Flood water was reported six feet deep in the University Circle area on Cleveland's East Side, and when the waters receded the body of a man identified by police as Richard Ambau, 38, was found.

The body was found outside an apartment building on East Boulevard near the Case Western Reserve University campus. Police said he may have drowned while trying to escape from his car.

Police were searching for 9-year-old Jacqueline Boomer, who they said was believed to have been sucked through an open manhole as she waded in swirling waters on the city's West Side.

The girl's brother, Michael, 13, told police he and Jacqueline were going toward a submerged car on West 130th Street at the Penn Central Railroad overpass. He said Jacqueline was right behind him but when he looked back she had disappeared.

Police said the manhole apparently was pushed off by the surge of water backing up through the sewer system. Officers said water was swirling around the sewer at about 20 miles an hour.

There were many reports of flooded streets and highways, and Interstate 77 was closed for a time in Cuyahoga Heights because of flooding so deep that many cars were completely submerged.

The two Cleveland Heights boys killed by lightning were identified at St. Luke's Hospital as Ernest Martin and Ronnie Morgan. Police said they had been playing football in a park when they were hit by lightning.

Deputy Director Eugene H. Hubtala of the Cleveland Zoo said it was the worst flooding ever seen there, but all zoo animals were reported safe.

The storm pulled down power lines and caused heavy flooding on streets and in basements in many sections of the city.

Police said a dozen squad cars were submerged in the basement garage at their Fourth District headquarters.

Two persons were killed in auto accidents early Sunday morning on Pickaway County highways raising the 1975 total number of deaths to 12.

Seventeen-year-old Rupert James Welliver, Route 1, Stoutsville, was pronounced dead at Berger Hospital, by County Coroner Dr. Ray Carroll, with massive head injuries sustained in a single-car accident, 2:20 a.m. Sunday.

According to the report taken by Sheriff's Deputy Nick Franklin, Welliver was eastbound on the Circleville-Tarleton Road and had just passed a westbound vehicle, when he lost control of his car in gravel and began to fishtail.

The auto traveled off the roadway into a fence, came back onto the road and flipped onto its top.

Welliver was thrown from the auto. At 9 a.m. Sunday, sheriff's authorities investigated the second fatality of the weekend when 58-year-old Vaughn F. Hedges, Route 5, was pronounced dead at Berger Hospital also suffering massive head injuries in a truck-cycle wreck, on Route 188 east of Bolender-Pontious Road.

Frank H. Sprouse, 42, Route 5, was westbound on Route 188 when he pulled left of center and stopped in the eastbound lane of the road at the mailboxes.

Backing up, Sprouse was attempting to make a right turn across the westbound lane of traffic. He failed to see the westbound motorcycle driven by Hedges.

Lockheed Remains Mum On Payoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel is challenging Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s assertion that business reasons prevent the company from disclosing the names of foreign persons and groups receiving more than $22 million in Lockheed payoffs.

Treasury Secretary William E. Simon and Lockheed chairman Daniel J. Houghton testify today before the Senate Banking Committee probing the payments that Lockheed acknowledges making since 1970.

Simon chairs a government board created to oversee a $250-million government loan guarantee granted Lockheed in 1971 when the company was in precarious financial condition.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., chairman of the committee, said in announcing the hearings that Lockheed may have violated the terms of the loan agreement by making the payments.

The company has declined to say who received the money, claiming such disclosure "could have a serious adverse impact on several hundred million dollars of the company's present backlog and could result in a material adverse impact with respect to the company's future operations."

Lockheed, asserting the payments "are consistent with practices engaged in by numerous other companies abroad, including many of its competitors," defended the practice as "necessary in consummating certain foreign sales."

However, Proxmire has contended that "the public is entitled to know the full details of these payoffs, the names of the recipients, the countries and the items that are being sold through a system of bribery."

Lockheed now has about $1.6 billion worth of orders in some 30 foreign nations for its airplanes, chiefly the L1011 TriStar jet passenger plane and the C130 cargo plane. About 12 per cent of all its sales are to foreign governments.

Weather

Sunny this morning becoming partly cloudy with a chance of thunderstorms in the afternoon and more likely tonight, high near 90. Low tonight, mid to upper 60s. Considerable cloudiness with a chance of showers Tuesday, high, low to mid 80s. Probability of precipitation, 40 per cent today, 60 per cent tonight and 30 per cent tomorrow. Temperatures Sunday were: high, 90; low, 73.

The cycle struck the right front of the truck throwing Hedges from the cycle.

Two passengers in the Sprouse vehicle were not injured.

Deputy James Fite is continuing the investigation of the fatal crash.

In another injury-accident investigated by Sheriff's Authorities, 2:19 a.m. Sunday, resulted in Daniel E. Kibler, 17, Route 5, being treated and released at Berger Hospital for cuts and abrasions when he was involved in a single-car accident.

According to the report taken by Deputy Bill Carmeans, Kibler was eastbound on Stoutsville Pike approaching the Washington Twp. School when an unknown oncoming vehicle forced Kibler off the roadway into a ditch.

The vehicle entered the ditch and knocked down a telephone pole and 60-feet of fence.

The accident is still under investigation.

Born Feb. 5, 1958 in Circleville, Welliver is the son of Rupert and Patricia Lynch Welliver, who survive.

Oil Firm Urges Control Spread

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of Mobil Oil Corp. says oil price controls should end gradually, rather than expire abruptly next weekend, to avoid a "shock to America's fragile economic recovery."

Rawleigh Warner Jr., chairman of the third largest U.S. oil company, said "nobody really knows" what the total economic effect will be if controls end suddenly but it "could stimulate higher prices, higher wages and perhaps some loss of jobs."

Warner, in a letter to members of Congress, said a gradual end of price controls over several years "cushions the impact of higher prices on the consumer over a period of time." Warner thus became the first U.S. oil executive to oppose a sudden end to controls.

Mobil has both U.S. and foreign oil sources.

Warner also criticized proposals that would impose a windfall-profits tax on the oil companies if controls end suddenly. Such a tax could fail to achieve its objectives in the future because today's windfall profits "may become tomorrow's vital earnings," Warner said.

Price controls that place a $5.25-a-barrel ceiling on about 60 per cent of U.S.-produced oil automatically expire Aug. 31, allowing the price to climb to the unregulated world price of around $12 a barrel.

Congress has approved a six-month extension of the controls. President Ford has promised to veto that measure, and administration energy experts maintain the economic impact of decontrol will not be severe.

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns predicted Sunday that gasoline would increase by 2 cents to 2½ cents a gallon if oil price controls end suddenly, Ford removes his $2-a-barrel tariff on imported oil and there are windfall profits taxes on the oil companies.

Congress is scheduled to vote on whether to override the veto shortly after the lawmakers return from their August vacation on Sept. 3.

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, in a speech Sunday at Libby Dam, Mont., with Ford sharing the rostrum, said he hoped the President would not veto the extension.

Ford, in his formal remarks at the dedication of the $470-million Libby Dam, said this country is known for its ability to get people of different persuasions to sit down and try to work out problems.

He also declared the United States must act now to seek energy self-sufficiency. "We have delayed too long," the President said. "If we fail to get cracking on a solution, we will have to depend more and more on foreign sources of energy in the future."

Bronfman Says Woman In Kidnap

NEW YORK (AP) — Samuel Bronfman 2nd, the whisky fortune heir kidnapped for nine days, believes one of his abductors was a woman, Time and Newsweek magazines reported this week.

The FBI had said no other arrests were expected when two men were charged with extortion last week in connection with the abduction of the 21-year-old Bronfman outside his mother's estate in Purchase, N.Y.

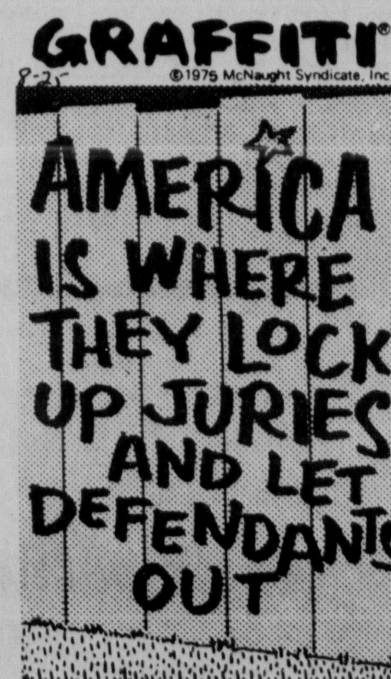

Arrested were Mel Patrick Lynch, a New York City fireman, and limousine service operator Dominic Byrne. Bronfman was rescued from Lynch's Brooklyn apartment. A $2.3 million ransom paid by the Bronfman family was recovered.

Newsweek said a source in Washington said the FBI was "still investigating whether a third person might have been involved — perhaps, as Sam himself was said to have told friends, a woman."

Time, which gave no source, said Bronfman has told investigators he is sure one of his kidnapers was a woman because "he heard the rap of high-heeled shoes on the sidewalk" after the car he was forced into stopped at one point and a passenger got out.

"He is certain that Lynch sat beside him on the seat, and he believes a third person was seated next to Lynch," Time said.

The magazine also said Bronfman said he heard Byrne tell someone on the telephone, "She said the money has been delivered."

There were many reports of flooded streets and highways, and Interstate 77 was closed for a time in Cuyahoga Heights because of flooding so deep that many cars were completely submerged.

The two Cleveland Heights boys killed by lightning were identified at St. Luke's Hospital as Ernest Martin and Ronnie Morgan. Police said they had been playing football in a park when they were hit by lightning.

Deputy Director Eugene H. Hubtala of the Cleveland Zoo said it was the worst flooding ever seen there, but all zoo animals were reported safe.

The storm pulled down power lines and caused heavy flooding on streets and in basements in many sections of the city.

Police said a dozen squad cars were submerged in the basement garage at their Fourth District headquarters.

Business Tax Breaks Urged

CHICAGO (AP) — Declaring America's economic machine is not running at top speed, President Ford today called for tax incentives for industry and an end to the "quicksand" of federal business regulation.

Ford said U.S. industry is starving for capital to expand but is strangled by inflation, restrictive tax laws and government red tape.

"Our financial ability to increase production is declining," the President said in remarks prepared for the convention of the American Hardware Manufacturers Assn. "This decline is curtailing needed growth in jobs and income and undermining our ability to compete internationally."

Rhodesian Meeting Opens On Black Rule For Nation

VICTORIA FALLS, Rhodesia (AP) — The Rhodesian constitutional talks between Prime Minister Ian Smith and black nationalist leaders opened on a bridge below the Victoria Falls today with Smith still adamantly opposed to black rule and the Africans still demanding it.

There was speculation of a breakthrough because Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa and President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia attended the opening session.

But Smith in a speech Saturday said his white-minority government has "no policy to hand our country over to any black majority government, and as far as I am concerned, we never will have."

The Nairobi, Kenya, Daily Nation commented editorially that unless Smith was bluffing, he had doomed the talks to failure.

The black Rhodesian delegation was led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, whose African National Council (ANC) is demanding immediate majority rule.

Smith said earlier that he might turn his back on the ANC and seek a political settlement with conservative black leaders amenable to continued

Hospital Deaths Eyed

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Officials at a Veterans Administration Hospital where eight patients died of respiratory arrest in a three-week period say they cannot rule out murder after a week of investigation.

FBI agents have joined the probe, along with a VA investigatory medical team.

In a statement issued Sunday, the hospital said there was a "critical suspicion" that the cause of the respiratory arrests was injection of a muscle relaxant that could have paralyzed a patient's breathing. But it added that it had not yet been determined if any such injections caused the deaths.

Nearly 50 of the hospital's patients stopped breathing at one time or another since July 1. Thirty-four of the respiratory arrests involved 23 patients and occurred between July 28 and Aug. 15, and eight attacks were fatal.

4 Southeastern Coal Mines Idle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four southeastern Ohio coal mines were idle today because of a walkout by mine workers over safety issues, according to a spokesman for the striking miners.

The walkouts affect three Southern Ohio Coal Co. mines in Meigs County and a Central Ohio Coal Co. mine near McConnellsville in Morgan County.

The union spokesman said the walkouts are not directly connected with the wildcat strikes at mines in West Virginia. But he said that if his men went back to work in the Meigs County mines, strikers from the Mountain State probably would attempt to close down the Ohio mines.

Southern Ohio spokesman Dave Baker said the company would go to federal court to seek an order telling the miners to get return to their jobs. He said Raccoon Mine No. 3 in Meigs County already is under a court anti-strike order.

in which both the corporation and stockholders are taxed."

Ford continued: "As expected, these proposals have raised an outcry from some members of Congress ... but the Congress has come up with no alternatives. We must do something about expanding our sources of capital to create jobs — and we must do it now."

He said some experts estimate that total investment requirements could reach as high as $4 trillion in the next few years.

In his strongest statement yet about what he calls excessive government regulation, Ford told the manufacturers "my object is to get the federal government as far out of your business, out of your lives, out of your pocket and out of your hair — as I can."

"Government regulations and restrictions now cost consumers billions of dollars each year," he said.

"One of the goals I have set for myself as President is to cut big government down to size," he said. "I want to put an end to the mountain of paperwork and the quicksand of regulation which big government makes every American businessman cope with."

The President also said that, as part of his over-all program, "We must maintain an antitrust policy which validates our commitment to competitive markets."

Ford stopped here on his way back to Washington from a twoweek western vacation.

Kent State Jury Resumes Studies

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Six men and six women went behind closed doors today to try a third time to decide whether 29 men should pay in dollars for the deaths and injuries of 13 students at Kent State University.

The jury deliberating on the $46 million civil damages claimed for those who were shot began the trial's 15th week still under guard of U.S. marshals as it had been since Thursday, when the court revealed one juror had been assaulted and threatened.

The panel spent 7½ hours Saturday in the jury room at the rear of the federal courtroom in which they listened to testimony for 3½ months. Deliberations began Friday.

Down the hall, some of the nine students wounded May 4, 1970, parents of four students killed and lawyers for the defendants waited for the decision. They were outnumbered by newsmen who took over a conference room across the corridor.

The jury did not emerge from seclusion except to break for lunch and later to leave for the day. The panel decided not to work Sunday but remained at a downtown hotel under the watchful eyes of guards, matrons and a court bailiff.

The protection was ordered earlier in the week after one juror was reported assaulted in an effort to influence his vote.

The shootings came on a Monday, after a weekend of rioting in Kent, following former President Richard Nixon's announcement that U. S. troops had been sent to Cambodia.

The gunfire erupted on a sunny campus hillside as Ohio National Guardsmen tried to disperse an anti-war rally.

The wounded and families of the dead $46 million in damages in U. S. District Court. The jury has to determine whether Gov. James A.

State Police Crack Down

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania State Police issued almost 2,000 traffic tickets Sunday as a crackdown on errant motorists continued.

Capt. Benjamin Jones said that 1,939 tickets were issued during a seven-hour period from 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. He said that the average for the period was between 400 and 500.

Jones said that 99 per cent of the tickets were for speeding violations, with most of the summonses going to passenger vehicles.

He said the crackdown wasn't costing the department any extra money in overtime salaries.

The crackdown began Friday when 1,847 persons were ticketed in six hours. Police indicated they would continue the program.

Refugees On Welfare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is providing welfare payments and medical care for 5,303 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees resettled in 25 states and the District of Columbia, the Health, Education and Welfare Department has announced.

This is about 9 per cent of those resettled as of July 16, the agency said Sunday, compared to 25 million — or 11 per cent — of U.S. citizens receiving welfare, Medicaid or social services.

Unlike welfare programs for American citizens, the costs of which are shared about equally by the state and federal governments, the refugee benefits are paid entirely by HEW.

The agency said an additional 17,000 refugees have been resettled since the July 16 state reports were made.

John A. Svahn, acting chief of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said many of the refugees on welfare were released without sponsors, because they had friends or relatives with whom they could stay.

Rhodes, ex-Adj. Gen. Sylvester T. Del Corso, Brig. Gen. Robert H. Canterbury, former Kent State President Robert I. White and 25 present or former guardsmen should be held financially liable personally.

The case went to the jury Friday afternoon after U. S. District Court Judge Don J. Young explained the issues and the law brought out in 14 weeks of trial.

The victims claim the shootings were unwarranted and deprived them of liberty and in some cases, life, without due process of law.

The defendants argue they were duty-bound to break up the rally, that the students contributed to their injuries by taking part in a forbidden assembly and that the troops had to shoot in self-defense when the crowd turned on them.

Rhodesian Meeting Opens On Black Rule For Nation

VICTORIA FALLS, Rhodesia (AP) — The Rhodesian constitutional talks between Prime Minister Ian Smith and black nationalist leaders opened on a bridge below the Victoria Falls today with Smith still adamantly opposed to black rule and the Africans still demanding it.

There was speculation of a breakthrough because Prime Minister John Vorster of South Africa and President Kenneth Kaunda of Zambia attended the opening session.

But Smith in a speech Saturday said his white-minority government has "no policy to hand our country over to any black majority government, and as far as I am concerned, we never will have."

The Nairobi, Kenya, Daily Nation commented editorially that unless Smith was bluffing, he had doomed the talks to failure.

The black Rhodesian delegation was led by Bishop Abel Muzorewa, whose African National Council (ANC) is demanding immediate majority rule.

Smith said earlier that he might turn his back on the ANC and seek a political settlement with conservative black leaders amenable to continued white domination.

The opening meeting was held in a South African railway car parked on the Victoria Falls bridge over the Zambezi River, the border between Zambia and Rhodesia. It was the first time black and white Rhodesians have sat together to discuss the central issue in Rhodesian politics, the rule of the white minority over a black majority 22 times more numerous.

It was also the first public meeting of Vorster and Kaunda. They conferred for an hour together at Livingstone, on the Zambian side of the border, and then walked to the conference coach.

Muzorewa and the other ANC delegates also boarded the train from the Zambian side of the border while Smith came from the Rhodesian side.

The two Rhodesian sides also disagreed on the the future course of the talks.

4 Southeastern Coal Mines Idle

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Four southeastern Ohio coal mines were idle today because of a walkout by mine workers over safety issues, according to a spokesman for the striking miners.

The walkouts affect three Southern Ohio Coal Co. mines in Meigs County and a Central Ohio Coal Co. mine near McConnellsville in Morgan County.

The union spokesman said the walkouts are not directly connected with the wildcat strikes at mines in West Virginia. But he said that if his men went back to work in the Meigs County mines, strikers from the Mountain State probably would attempt to close down the Ohio mines.

Southern Ohio spokesman Dave Baker said the company would go to federal court to seek an order telling the miners to get return to their jobs. He said Raccoon Mine No. 3 in Meigs County already is under a court anti-strike order.

LORDSTOWN, Ohio (AP) — Fabricating plant workers at the giant General Motors Corp. complex returned to work today with the second shift, ending a five-week-old strike, a union spokesman said.

in which both the corporation and stockholder are taxed."

Ford continued: "As expected, these proposals have raised an outcry from some members of Congress ... but the Congress has come up with no alternatives. We must do something about expanding our sources of capital to create jobs — and we must do it now."

He said some experts estimate that total investment requirements could reach as high as $4 trillion in the next few years.

In his strongest statement yet about what he calls excessive government regulation, Ford told the manufacturers "my object is to get the federal government as far out of your business, out of your lives, out of your pocket and out of your hair — as I can."

"Government regulations and restrictions now cost consumers billions of dollars each year," he said.

"One of the goals I have set for myself as President is to cut big government down to size," he said. "I want to put an end to the mountain of paperwork and the quicksand of regulation which big government makes every American businessman cope with."

The President also said that, as part of his over-all program, "We must maintain an antitrust policy which validates our commitment to competitive markets."

Ford stopped here on his way back to Washington from a two-week western vacation.

Kent State Jury Resumes Studies

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Six men and six women went behind closed doors today to try a third time to decide whether 29 men should pay in dollars for the deaths and injuries of 13 students at Kent State University.

The jury deliberating on the $46 million civil damages claimed for those who were shot began the trial's 15th week still under guard of U.S. marshals as it had been since Thursday, when the court revealed one juror had been assaulted and threatened.

The panel spent 7½ hours Saturday in the jury room at the rear of the federal courtroom in which they listened to testimony for 3½ months. Deliberations began Friday.

Down the hall, some of the nine students wounded May 4, 1970, parents of four students killed and lawyers for the defendants waited for the decision. They were outnumbered by newsmen who took over a conference room across the corridor.

The jury did not emerge from seclusion except to break for lunch and later to leave for the day. The panel decided not to work Sunday but remained at a downtown hotel under the watchful eyes of guards, matrons and a court bailiff.

The protection was ordered earlier in the week after one juror was reported assaulted in an effort to influence his vote.

The shootings came on a Monday, after a weekend of rioting in Kent, following former President Richard Nixon's announcement that U. S. troops had been sent to Cambodia.

The gunfire erupted on a sunny campus hillside as Ohio National Guardsmen tried to disperse an anti-war rally.

The wounded and families of the dead $46 million in damages in U. S. District Court. The jury has to determine whether Gov. James A.

State Police Crack Down

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania State Police issued almost 2,000 traffic tickets Sunday as a crack-down on errant motorists continued.

Capt. Benjamin Jones said that 1,939 tickets were issued during a seven-hour period from 2 p.m. until 9 p.m. He said that the average for the period was between 400 and 500.

Jones said that 99 per cent of the tickets were for speeding violations, with most of the summonses going to passenger vehicles.

He said the crackdown wasn't costing the department any extra money in overtime salaries.

The crackdown began Friday when 1,847 persons were ticketed in six hours. Police indicated they would continue the program.

Refugees On Welfare

WASHINGTON (AP) — The federal government is providing welfare payments and medical care for 5,303 Vietnamese and Cambodian refugees resettled in 25 states and the District of Columbia, the Health, Education and Welfare Department has announced.

This is about 9 per cent of those resettled as of July 16, the agency said Sunday, compared to 25 million — or 11 per cent — of U.S. citizens receiving welfare, Medicaid or social services.

Unlike welfare programs for American citizens, the costs of which are shared about equally by the state and federal governments, the refugee benefits are paid entirely by HEW.

The agency said an additional 17,000 refugees have been resettled since the July 16 state reports were made.

John A. Svahn, acting chief of HEW's Social and Rehabilitation Service, said many of the refugees on welfare were released without sponsors, because they had friends or relatives with whom they could stay.

The case went to the jury Friday afternoon after U. S. District Court Judge Don J. Young explained the issues and the law brought out in 14 weeks of trial.

The victims claim the shootings were unwarranted and deprived them of liberty and in some cases, life, without due process of law.

The defendants argue they were duty-bound to break up the rally, that the students contributed to their injuries by taking part in a forbidden assembly and that the troops had to shoot in self-defense when the crowd turned on them.

Savings Quandary

Record savings which continue to pour into many banks and savings institutions are worrying economists who are looking for major consumer spending and borrowing to help the economy in the post-recession recovery period. Something of a paradox is seen in the current savings picture.

Generally, a rise in savings without a corresponding increase in lending brings pressures for lower interest rates. But the trend now is toward at least slightly higher interest rates once again.

Adding to the uncertainty of the lending market is the huge deficit the federal government is compiling and the obvious necessity for tapping savings to help finance it. If industry should decide to proceed with postponed capital additions and improvements, the demands for investment capital could mushroom rapidly.

In that kind of market, the individual consumer would be hard-pressed to secure the kind of loan he would be willing or able to handle.

Couldn't Win Them All

By JIM BISHOP

Dawn comes up fast and pink in Washington. The sun sticks an edge of hot tongue over the white buildings and all the leaves of all the trees stand still. The city produces nothing. The capital is the kept woman of all other cities.

The sun wriggled through the blinds. I lifted my head from the pillow and let it fall. Sleep is cool. My back itched. I couldn't scratch it. Arms should have been made with four more joints.

There was a knock on the door. I ignored it. A fist pounded. I said, "Hah?" A voice akin to a rasp on a nail said, "How do you like your eggs?" I wanted to say inside the chicken, but I remembered where I was.

The man knocking was James Riddle Hoffa. I got up. My white hair looked like a dollop of whipped cream. I got a bathrobe.

"What time is it?" I said in the hall. "Late," Hoffa said, "It's past seven." I sat at the breakfast table. Past seven? My customary time to rise and shine is past 10.

I sat watching him. Morning memory is arthritic. I was in Washington to write a series of newspaper articles about Hoffa. He was a short, crew-cut Jimmy Cagney, one who hoisted his pants with his wrists.

Someone was chuckling. This was Harold Gibbons, vice president of the Teamsters. He was the youngest of about 20 children who grew up around a coal mine. Gibbons had intellect and wit. Hoffa was a bulldozer.

Jimmy's bacon and eggs made a racket in a frying pan. "You'll get used to getting up early," Harold said. "If Jimmy gets up early, everybody gets up." I remembered. We were in a Teamster apartment.

Writing about Hoffa when the McClellan Committee was bird-dogging him was a challenge. The committee counsel was Robert F. Kennedy, a messy-haired man who awoke each morning swearing to "get Hoffa."

I wrote to Kennedy and asked to see him. He was too busy. Instead, he sent me four volumes of Senate interrogation of Hoffa. It took a week to read. I couldn't find one place where anyone charged him with being a crook. No charge, no proof.

Bill Hearst wanted an in-depth study of Mighty-Mouse. He thought I could do it. My daughter Ginny has a father-in-law who was a Teamster official in Miami. I called Dave Frechette. He's as big as Gibbons — a man to ask for favors.

Dave phoned Hoffa. Hoffa said, "Is this guy Bishop on the level?" Frechette took a chance. "Yeah," he said. "He'll give you a fair shake."

So I was staying with Hoffa. And Jimmy was setting up an extension on his office so that I could listen in to all calls and make notes. When the Teamsters negotiated a new contract, I even adjourned to the bathroom with them. That's where they discussed their rock-bottom demands.

I flew to Detroit. There I dined in Hoffa's home. The dining room was so small that Mrs. Hoffa had to pass the roast and mashed potatoes standing in the kitchen. Hoffa drove a Chevy. His subordinates had Cadillacs.

After two weeks I had enough notes. I wrote the articles. They weren't flattering to the little guy, but they didn't call him names either. He was a small flint with a big light. His only love, besides, his family, was Local 299 Detroit.

The man who refused to see me — Robert F. Kennedy — wrote a protest to all my editors and publishers. They sent the blast to me; I responded to Kennedy. The following year, my income tax was audited. It has been audited every year since.

Some union leaders, such as Philip Murray and George Meany, burn steadily and last forever. Hoffa was a Roman candle. He fought everybody in the union until he got to the top. Then he had nobody to fight, except the government. This is called a no-win situation.

He made breakfast. The apartment was dark and cool. "Like your eggs?" he said. I shook my head. "Eggs are for lunch," I said. He laughed. "You get 'em tomorrow and the next day until you learn to like 'em."

Harold Gibbons winked. After breakfast I asked another 50 questions. Hoffa never hesitated with an answer about pension funds or investments. Neither did Gibbons.

Sometimes Hoffa talked tough. I asked what he thought of Robert Kennedy. "Whaddya want me to say?" he snarled. "That's teh runt of the litter." I decided not to use the quote. Hoffa's weakness was in thinking he could win any fight . . .

City In Space Could Come Soon

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — A $100 billion city in space that would house 10,000 people and beam solar energy to earth could be a reality within 20 years, according to a select team of scholars.

After a 10-week study, 28 scientists, engineers and students have recommended that the United States create space colonies using technology already available and minerals mined from the moon.

Findings were revealed in advance of a news conference today at Ames Research Center, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration facility.

The scholars said a space colony, once built, could transmit limitless solar energy to earth 24 hours a day.

Dr. Gerard K. O'Neill, a Princeton University physics professor, originated the space colony idea. The summer-long study session was sponsored by NASA and the American Society of Engineering Education.

In an interview, O'Neill said the first hurdle proponents face is convincing the government and public that living in space is no longer a dream, but an achievable goal.

"I'd say people have been planetary chauvinists," O'Neill said. "They haven't considered living anywhere but on earth because they've believed they couldn't live anywhere else."

As envisioned, the space colony would resemble a mile-wide wheel and have 10,000 inhabitants living in the outer rim. The vessel would orbit between the earth and moon, some 280,000 miles out in space.

Food for all residents would grow on 111 acres, with crops bathed in continuous sunlight. To maintain gravity similar to earth's, the craft would make one complete revolution every minute.

Residents would have a half-mile-long landscaped vista and pure water would be recycled from sewage. The air would be cleaner than that in any city on earth because of constant filtering.

O'Neill said construction could begin now, using present technology, and the first colony could be functional by the early 1990s.

"It would be an incredible undertaking to try to launch the space colony from earth, whether as a whole or by pieces," he said. "It would be much easier to lift construction equipment — less than 1 per cent as heavy as the entire station — into a lunar orbit with simple rockets used in the space shuttle program."

The space shuttle is a reflyable, rocket-powered ship which will ferry scientists and others into space. It is expected to be fully operational in the 1980s.

Despite the expense, the study said the project would more than pay for itself by offering unlimited solar power for earth and by easing population- and resource-related problems on earth.

Girl Slain In Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Police said Christine Mullins, 14, apparently was clubbed to death after she went to a shopping center complex to take part in what she thought was a cheerleading contest.

The girl's body was found in a wooded area behind the shopping center on the city's north side Saturday. A witness who had been walking nearby with his wife and daughter said he saw the girl being clubbed with a board, police said.

Police said a neighbor girl said she received a telephone call from somebody claiming he was a radio disc jockey and was having a cheerleading contest, good for a pass to the Ohio State Fair.

The other girl, police said, met Christie on the way to the shopping center. When they arrived no one was there, and the neighbor girl went into the center to check the time.

Detective Robert Litzinger said when the neighbor girl came out of the store she couldn't find Christie. The eyewitness to the beating told police the man wielding the club fled when he was spotted.

Police are looking for a young man between 17 and 21.

Faubus Efforts Fail

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus, who tried to block desegregation of the Little Rock school system in September 1957, has failed in both of his efforts to return to the governor's office.

In 1970, he was defeated in the Democratic party primary by Dale Bumpers, who became governor and then the Democratic senatorial nominee.

In 1974, Faubus lost the party primary to David H. Pryor of Little Rock.

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Help! I simply can't get my children to take any medicine. Do you have any ideas?

Mrs. T.K., Nev.

Dear Mrs. K.: I don't blame you for trying hard to find an answer to this universal problem.

Parents, subjected to the tyranny of children who adamantly refuse to take medicine, know the agonizing moments of despair and frustration.

I pass on to you a suggestion made by Dr. Leon Horowitz, of Tulsa, Okla. In the excellent medical magazine, "Consultant," he says:

"The child who balks at taking liquid medication from a teaspoon or medicine glass may be more cooperative if you put the medication in a paper cup, add a little water and give him a straw."

A great idea. I've tried it and it works. Another suggestion: When children are very young, parents should firmly lay down the ground rules for medicine taking. Once the pattern is established that medicine must be taken without a fuss, parents do not have the problem that you describe.

performed, is there any greater danger to the newborn infant than when the baby is delivered normally?

Mrs. W.L., W.V.

Dear Mrs. L.: A Cesarean operation is usually done when there is a problem that may adversely affect the safety of the child or the mother.

If the baby's head is too large, or if the mother's pelvis is too small, or if prolonged labor is adversely affecting the child or the mother, this safe operation is done.

The need for Cesarean surgery is usually anticipated long in advance. It can be planned for, and therefore imposes no hardship on the newborn child.

In fact, there is far less pressure made on the infant when Cesarean section is the choice of delivery.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . Factory workers tend to become careless about using protective devices that are provided for them. Such carelessness is contagious. One worker follows the example of his working neighbor. Many thus are unnecessarily exposed to the hazards of their occupation.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

I would like to congratulate Dick Redman on a very well-written and factual letter concerning the hunting of doves in Ohio. As for Mr. Strous's letter of "sad cooing", it shows his ignorance of what wildlife management is all about.

Hunters don't go afield just to kill "small brown speckled birds". Many times while hunting ducks I refrain from shooting just to watch the magnificent flight pattern of a green-wing teal or a wood duck. I once swam across the Scioto River in late November to retrieve a crippled wood duck that I shot and just wounded, rather than let it suffer through a lingering death.

So don't condemn all hunters for being blood-thirsty killers who hunt just to harvest four ounces of meat.

I'm glad Mr. Strous is so concerned with the fate of the mourning dove, as are most of the dedicated hunters of Ohio, who are also conservationists.

Sincerely,
JOE SCHNEIDER

Business World

By JOHN CUNNIFF

AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — For the past five years Americans seem to have been able to sense the severity of our consumer economic problems much better than the government itself.

In one sense, this is only to be expected. It is the ordinary American who is on the front line in the battle of the economy. He pays those rising prices. He gets laid off. He is forced to dip into savings.

On the other hand, it is the federal government which has the computer printouts, the statistics that provide what is considered objective numerical evidence of what is going on with prices and jobs.

The trouble with the government spokesmen, it seems, is that after expensively gathering all the statistical evidence they then choose to ignore it because it is too distasteful. They prefer to dream of a better future.

And so you had a Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Richard M. Nixon, declaring each month for a year-and-a-half that inflation was coming under control. Prices rose all that time.

And today you have Alan Greenspan, who fills the same job under President Ford, conceding that while the figures might not look so good today they most certainly will be better tomorrow.

Few Americans who regularly involve themselves in the market place were surprised that consumer prices leaped 1.2 per cent in July. They knew. They never shared the administration's euphoria. They knew; they had paid.

And most Americans, it seems safe to say, were resigned to paying higher food prices because of the sale of grain to the Soviet Union. The Agriculture Department said no. Now, unable to ignore the evidence, they say yes.

Food prices, said Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, might be 9 per cent higher this year. Earlier he had been forecasting an increase of 6 to 8 per cent. Many consumers still don't believe him. They feel prices could be higher.

Judging from the evidence the government seems to believe that it can shine up the grimmest of statistical evidence and have the public believe the news is scintillatingly good.

What it overlooks is obvious. First, when it announces several weeks after the fact that prices have risen or fallen it isn't telling the public anything it doesn't know. Consumers already have experienced those prices.

Moreover, consumers make a realistic appraisal of their financial position almost constantly. They live in a real world in which their survival is at stake. They cannot indulge in dreams. Prices are real.

Neither can they look to the future and say things will be better without concrete evidence that they will be better. They cannot indulge in wishful thinking. They leave that to the government.

Whereas the government is convinced the people listen to it, the people would really like the government to listen to them. They have the facts.

Non-Person Back As Chinese Leader

TOKYO (AP) — Wang Pingnan, purged as vice foreign minister during China's cultural revolution, has been named president of the People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries.

The association was set up in 1954 to promote Peking's foreign policy.

Wang, 69, was politically "rehabilitated" to assume the post.

He lost his foreign ministry position in 1967 when opponents called him a traitor to the revolution. He had held the position since 1964.

The announcement of the new appointment, broadcast by Hsinhua, the Chinese news agency, was monitored here Sunday.

Ridgeback May Get Name Changed

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The Rhodesian ridgeback, one of Africa's most distinctive breeds of dog, is threatened with losing its identity as Rhodesia moves to majority rule.

The breed gets its name from the ridge of hair running the length of the dog's spine.

But if African nationalists take over Rhodesia the name of the country will probably be changed to Zimbabwe so a member of the Rhodesian Ridgeback Club has suggested it get in first and rename the breed African ridgeback.

It is believed to originate from a Hottentot hunting dog which was crossed with various Dutch or German hunting dogs brought to Southern Africa in the 1800s.

The breed has also been introduced into several overseas countries.

The United States prohibits the importation of absinthe, habitual use of which causes mental and physical debility.

Young Solon Has Big Victory

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sherrod Brown is sitting on top of the world. For more than two hours the other day, a packed House chamber witnessed debate on an item-pricing bill sponsored by state Rep. Sherrod Brown.

When it was over, the 22-year-old Mansfield legislator was walking on air. It wasn't his first victory on the House floor, but it was the most satisfactory thus far.

Better, perhaps, than winning the first time he ever ran for election.

When you win with a controversial bill that gets support from both sides of the floor, it's too sweet to believe.

The item-pricing bill requires stores to continue to mark prices on individual items regardless of a new computer-scanner check-out system — if the item costs more than 10 cents.

The Retail Clerks Union, with the considerable aid of the AFL-CIO, backed the bill. The Retail Merchants, described as a powerful lobby, opposed it.

It was a big victory, a moment to remember.

Coming off the floor, Brown was surrounded by friends, fellow legislators, lobbyists and hangers-on, all reaching for his hand like it held a $1,000 bill. Throughout the afternoon and at an evening reception at the nearby Sheraton Hotel, Brown was a celebrity.

To find Sherrod Brown, a visitor is advised to enter the Statehouse Annex building and start making right turns. When the visitor can no longer make right turns, he has arrived in a tiny office Brown calls home.

Physically, Brown is thin and gangling and comes off his chair one quick part at a time. His hair is long and a mustache is being born. The smile is friendly and the first greeting of "Hi, how are you?" is as sincere in tone as a visitor could wish.

You honestly could believe he had been waiting just to see you.

On the Wednesday his bill passed, he was nervous, running from place to place to round up support, and find more information for his opening floor speech. Intermittently, he wrote the speech in longhand.

There were visitors to the cubicle — legislators, reporters and even a lobbyist or two. The phone jangles and Brown holding up his visitor with a hand and a grin, carried on a rapidfire conversation.

A radio reporter dropped by and Brown talked into a microphone and tape recorder. His quick, but easy, microphone style gets the interview over efficiently.

He was nervous, but having the time of his life.

For lunch he walked to a nearby quick food restaurant and took a minicarryout lunch to the Statehouse lawn for a bit of music and relaxation among the city's thousands of office workers.

"I don't eat out with lobbyists," he said. "I guess they think I'm strange that way."

Stuck With Winner

TORONTO (AP) — Jarrold Organ, a university student with a job at Toronto's Greenway Raceway, was working the $10 parimutual window when a customer asked for an exactor ticket on the last race.

Organ punched the ticket but made a mistake on the horses' numbers. The customer asked him for a new ticket and Organ was stuck with the original. The horses on his ticket came home first and second. His winnings: $3,501.

Nurse Given Car By Elvis

MEMPHIS (AP) — Singer Elvis Presley, despite his fourth hospitalization since last fall, has given away yet another free car. This time the recipient was a nurse.

Mrs. Marian Cocke, a nursing supervisor on the 18th floor of Baptist Hospital, drove to work Friday in a four-year-old Ford. She drove home in a luxury model Pontiac.

Presley canceled a Las Vegas show after Wednesday night performances and flew back to Memphis. He was hospitalized on doctors' orders Thursday night for "tests and fatigue."

Mrs. Cocke said Presley told her about her new car Friday morning.

"Then he called me to his room about noon and said my car was here," she said.

Teen-Aged Woman Fights Forest Fires From Aircraft

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — A teen-aged woman has been in the cockpit of aircraft used this summer in battling some of the West's largest forest fires.

It takes strength and lots of concentration, says 19-year-old Megann Streeter, but she says she likes flying the four-engine, DC6 "slurry bombers" better than driving on a highway way.

"You've got a job to do just like the men do, and if you can do the job, they don't say much," said the Salt Lake City woman, who flies with a charter airline operated by her father, John Streeter.

"It just takes time ... and age. I started flying when I was 13, and you can't solo until you're 16, can't get a private license until you're 17, or a commercial until you're 18."

She was a copilot on a DC6 used to drop fire retardants on a 13,000-acre fire in the Tonto National Forest of central Arizona and smaller blazes around the state.

Later, she was sent to Southern California when two major fires and a host of smaller ones broke out.

Miss Streeter, who has logged 1,200 air hours and holds a commercial multi-engine pilot's license, says there aren't as many crashes as is popularly believed. She adds, "There aren't as many maniacs in the air as there are on the ground...."

"Flying forest fires tends to be a little more hazardous. You're flying low to the ground, and up canyons."

In a strong wind or an emergency, Miss Streeter said she uses both arms and legs to operate the copilot's controls.

When she's not flying, Miss Streeter often is on one-hour flight standby.

"It's a little hard on dating," she said. "Every time you go out, they call. It's almost guaranteed."

The job has long hours and lots of travel, Miss Streeter said.

"I don't think too many would like it — man or woman," she added.

But there's a special feeling about being airborne.

"It's just kind of a feeling that you're more alone than on the ground," Miss Streeter said. "And you're working with people that know what's going on."

On Feb. 8, 1962, rioting in Paris of thousands of left-wing demonstrators against the Right Wing Secret Army Organization claimed eight lives and injured hundreds.

Savings Quandary

Record savings which continue to pour into many banks and savings institutions are worrying economists who are looking for major consumer spending and borrowing to help the economy in the post-recession recovery period. Something of a paradox is seen in the current savings picture.

Generally, a rise in savings without a corresponding increase in lending brings pressures for lower interest rates. But the trend now is toward at least slightly higher interest rates once again.

Adding to the uncertainty of the lending market is the huge deficit the federal government is compiling and the obvious necessity for tapping savings to help finance it. If industry should decide to proceed with postponed capital additions and improvements, the demands for investment capital could mushroom rapidly.

In that kind of market, the individual consumer would be hard-pressed to secure the kind of loan he would be willing or able to handle.

Couldn't Win Them All

By JIM BISHOP

Dawn comes up fast and pink in Washington. The sun sticks an edge of hot tongue over the white buildings and all the leaves of all the trees stand still. The city produces nothing. The capital is the kept woman of all other cities.

The sun wriggled through the blinds. I lifted my head from the pillow and let it fall. Sleep is cool. My back itched. I couldn't scratch it. Arms should have been made with four more joints.

There was a knock on the door. I ignored it. A fist pounded. I said, "Hah?" A voice akin to a rasp on a nail said, "How do you like your eggs?" I wanted to say inside the chicken, but I remembered where I was.

The man knocking was James Riddle Hoffa. I got up. My white hair looked like a dollop of whipped cream. I got a bathrobe.

"What time is it?" I said in the hall. "Late," Hoffa said, "It's past seven." I sat at the breakfast table. Past seven? My customary time to rise and shine is past 10.

I sat watching him. Morning memory is arthritic. I was in Washington to write a series of newspaper articles about Hoffa. He was a short, crew-cut Jimmy Cagney, one who hoisted his pants with his wrists.

Someone was chuckling. This was Harold Gibbons, vice president of the Teamsters. He was the youngest of about 20 children who grew up around a coal mine. Gibbons had intellect and wit. Hoffa was a bulldozer.

Jimmy's bacon and eggs made a racket in a frying pan. "You'll get used to getting up early," Harold said. "If Jimmy gets up early, everybody gets up." I remembered. We were in a Teamster apartment.

Writing about Hoffa when the McClellan Committee was bird-dogging him was a challenge. The committee counsel was Robert F. Kennedy, a messy-haired man who awoke each morning swearing to "get Hoffa."

I wrote to Kennedy and asked to see him. He was too busy. Instead, he sent me four volumes of Senate interrogation of Hoffa. It took a week to read. I couldn't find one place where anyone charged him with being a crook. No charge, no proof.

Bill Hearst wanted an in-depth study of Mighty-Mouse. He thought I could do it. My daughter Ginny has a father-in-law who was a Teamster official in Miami. I called Dave Frechette. He's as big as Gibbons — a man to ask for favors.

Dave phoned Hoffa. Hoffa said, "Is this guy Bishop on the level?" Frechette took a chance. "Yeah," he said. "He'll give you a fair shake."

So I was staying with Hoffa. And Jimmy was setting up an extension on his office so that I could listen in to all calls and make notes. When the Teamsters negotiated a new contract, I even adjourned to the bathroom with them. That's where they discussed their rock-bottom demands.

I flew to Detroit. There I dined in Hoffa's home. The dining room was so small that Mrs. Hoffa had to pass the roast and mashed potatoes standing in the kitchen. Hoffa drove a Chevy. His subordinates had Cadillacs.

After two weeks I had enough notes. I wrote the articles. They weren't flattering to the little guy, but they didn't call him names either. He was a small flint with a big light. His only love, besides his family, was Local 299 Detroit.

The man who refused to see me — Robert F. Kennedy — wrote a protest to all my editors and publishers. They sent the blast to me; I responded to Kennedy. The following year, my income tax was audited. It has been audited every year since.

Some union leaders, such as Philip Murray and George Meany, burn steadily and last forever. Hoffa was a Roman candle. He fought everybody in the union until he got to the top. Then he had nobody to fight, except the government. This is called a no-win situation.

He made breakfast. The apartment was dark and cool. "Like your eggs?" he said. I shook my head. "Eggs are for lunch," I said. He laughed. "You get 'em tomorrow and the next day until you learn to like 'em."

Harold Gibbons winked. After breakfast I asked another 50 questions. Hoffa never hesitated with an answer about pension funds or investments. Neither did Gibbons.

Sometimes Hoffa talked tough. I asked what he thought of Robert Kennedy. "Whaddya want me to say?" he snarled. "That's the runt of the litter." I decided not to use the quote. Hoffa's weakness was in thinking he could win any fight . . .

City In Space Could Come Soon

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — A $100 billion city in space that would house 10,000 people and beam solar energy to earth could be a reality within 20 years, according to a select team of scholars.

After a 10-week study, 28 scientists, engineers and students have recommended that the United States create space colonies using technology already available and minerals mined from the moon.

Findings were revealed in advance of a news conference today at Ames Research Center, a National Aeronautics and Space Administration facility.

The scholars said a space colony, once built, could transmit limitless solar energy to earth 24 hours a day.

Dr. Gerard K. O'Neill, a Princeton University physics professor, originated the space colony idea. The summer-long study session was sponsored by NASA and the American Society of Engineering Education.

In an interview, O'Neill said the first hurdle proponents face is convincing the government and public that living in space is no longer a dream, but an achievable goal.

"I'd say people have been planetary chauvinists," O'Neill said. "They haven't considered living anywhere but on earth because they've believed they couldn't live anywhere else."

As envisioned, the space colony would resemble a mile-wide wheel and have 10,000 inhabitants living in the outer rim. The vessel would orbit between the earth and moon, some 280,000 miles out in space.

Food for all residents would grow on 111 acres, with crops bathed in continuous sunlight. To maintain gravity similar to earth's, the craft would make one complete revolution every minute.

Residents would have a half-mile-long landscaped vista and pure water would be recycled from sewage. The air would be cleaner than that in any city on earth because of constant filtering.

O'Neill said construction could begin now, using present technology, and the first colony could be functional by the early 1990s.

"It would be an incredible undertaking to try to launch the space colony from earth, whether as a whole or by pieces," he said. "It would be much easier to lift construction equipment — less than 1 per cent as heavy as the entire station — into a lunar orbit with simple rockets used in the space shuttle program."

The space shuttle is a reusable, rocket-powered ship which will ferry scientists and others into space. It is expected to be fully operational in the 1980s.

Despite the expense, the study said the project would more than pay for itself by offering unlimited solar power for earth and by easing population- and resource-related problems on earth.

Girl Slain In Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Police said Christine Mullins, 14, apparently was clubbed to death after she went to a shopping center complex to take part in what she thought was a cheerleading contest.

The girl's body was found in a wooded area behind the shopping center on the city's north side Saturday. A witness who had been walking nearby with his wife and daughter said he saw the girl being clubbed with a board, police said.

Police said a neighbor girl said she received a telephone call from someone claiming he was a radio disc jockey and was having a cheerleading contest, good for a pass to the Ohio State Fair.

The other girl, police said, met Christie on the way to the shopping center. When they arrived no one was there, and the neighbor girl went into the center to check the time.

Detective Robert Litzinger said when the neighbor girl came out of the store she couldn't find Christie. The eyewitness to the beating told police the man wielding the club fled when he was spotted.

Police are looking for a young man between 17 and 21.

Faubus Efforts Fail

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Former Gov. Orval E. Faubus, who tried to block desegregation of the Little Rock school system in September 1957, has failed in both of his efforts to return to the governor's office.

In 1970, he was defeated in the Democratic party primary by Dale Bumpers, who became governor and then the Democratic senatorial nominee.

In 1974, Faubus lost the party primary to David H. Pryor of Little Rock.

Letters To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE: While The Herald encourages open comments from its readers, the opinions expressed are not necessarily those of the management. Letters to the editor must be signed and should be of 300 words or less.

Dear Editor:

I would like to congratulate Dick Redman on a very well-written and factual letter concerning the hunting of doves in Ohio. As for Mr. Strous's letter of "sad cooing", it shows his ignorance of what wildlife management is all about.

Hunters don't go afield just to kill "small brown speckled birds". Many times while hunting ducks I refrain from shooting just to watch the magnificent flight pattern of a green-wing teal or a wood duck. I once swam across the Scioto River in late November to retrieve a crippled wood duck that I shot and just wounded, rather than let it suffer through a lingering death.

So don't condemn all hunters for being blood-thirsty killers who hunt just to harvest four ounces of meat.

I'm glad Mr. Strous is so concerned with the fate of the mourning dove, as are most of the dedicated hunters of Ohio, who are also conservationists.

Sincerely,
JOE SCHNEIDER

Speaking Of Your Health

by Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Help! I simply can't get my children to take any medicine. Do you have any ideas?

Mrs. T.K., Nev.

Dear Mrs. K.: I don't blame you for trying hard to find an answer to this universal problem.

Parents, subjected to the tyranny of children who adamantly refuse to take medicine, know the agonizing moments of despair and frustration.

I pass on to you a suggestion made by Dr. Leon Horowitz, of Tulsa, Okla. In the excellent medical magazine, "Consultant," he says:

"The child who balks at taking liquid medication from a teaspoon or medicine glass may be more cooperative if you put the medication in a paper cup, add a little water and give him a straw."

A great idea. I've tried it and it works. Another suggestion: When children are very young, parents should firmly lay down the ground rules for medicine taking. Once the pattern is established that medicine must be taken without a fuss, parents do not have the problem that you describe.

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — For the past five years Americans seem to have been able to sense the severity of our consumer economic problems much better than the government itself.

In one sense, this is only to be expected. It is the ordinary American who is on the front line in the battle of the economy. He pays those rising prices. He gets laid off. He is forced to dip into savings.

On the other hand, it is the federal government which has the computer printouts, the statistics that provide what is considered objective numerical evidence of what is going on with prices and jobs.

The trouble with the government spokesmen, it seems, is that after expensively gathering all the statistical evidence they then choose to ignore it because it is too distasteful. They prefer to dream of a better future.

And so you had a Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers under President Richard M. Nixon, declaring each month for a year-and-a-half that inflation was coming under control. Prices rose all that time.

And today you have Alan Greenspan, who fills the same job under President Ford, conceding that while the figures might not look so good today they most certainly will be better tomorrow.

Few Americans who regularly involve themselves in the market place were surprised that consumer prices leaped 1.2 per cent in July. They knew. They never shared the administration's euphoria. They knew; they had paid.

And most Americans, it seems safe to say, were resigned to paying higher food prices because of the sale of grain to the Soviet Union. The Agriculture Department said no. Now, unable to ignore the evidence, they say yes.

Food prices, said Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, might be 9 per cent higher this year. Earlier he had been forecasting an increase of 6 to 8 per cent. Many consumers still don't believe him. They feel prices could be higher.

Judging from the evidence the government seems to believe that it can shine up the grimmest of statistical evidence and have the public believe the news is scintillatingly good.

What it overlooks is obvious. First, when it announces several weeks after the fact that prices have risen or fallen it isn't telling the public anything it doesn't know. Consumers already have experienced those prices.

Moreover, consumers make a performed, is there any greater danger to the newborn infant than when the baby is delivered normally? Mrs. W.L., W.V.

Dear Mrs. L.: A Cesarean operation is usually done when there is a problem that may adversely affect the safety of the child or the mother.

If the baby's head is too large, or if the mother's pelvis is too small, or if prolonged labor is adversely affecting the child or the mother, this safe operation is done.

The need for Cesarean surgery is usually anticipated long in advance. It can be planned for, and therefore imposes no hardship on the newborn child. In fact, there is far less pressure made on the infant when Cesarean section is the choice of delivery.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH . . . Factory workers tend to become careless about using protective devices that are provided for them. Such carelessness is contagious. One worker follows the example of his working neighbor. Many thus are unnecessarily exposed to the hazards of their occupation.

Non-Person Back As Chinese Leader

TOKYO (AP) — Wang Pingnan, purged as vice foreign minister during China's cultural revolution, has been named president of the People's Association for Friendship with Foreign Countries.

The association was set up in 1954 to promote Peking's foreign policy.

Wang, 69, was politically "rehabilitated" to assume the post.

He lost his foreign ministry position in 1967 when opponents called him a traitor to the revolution. He had held the position since 1964.

The announcement of the new appointment, broadcast by Hsinhua, the Chinese news agency, was monitored here Sunday.

Ridgeback May Get Name Changed

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (AP) — The Rhodesian ridgeback, one of Africa's most distinctive breeds of dog, is threatened with losing its identity as Rhodesia moves to majority rule.

The breed gets its name from the ridge of hair running the length of the dog's spine.

But if African nationalists take over Rhodesia the name of the country will probably be changed to Zimbabwe so a member of the Rhodesian Ridgeback Club has suggested it get in first and rename the breed African ridgeback.

It is believed to originate from a Hottentot hunting dog which was crossed with various Dutch or German hunting dogs brought to Southern Africa in the 1800s.

The breed has also been introduced into several overseas countries.

The United States prohibits the importation of absinthe, habitual use of which causes mental and physical debility.

Jesuit Priest
Marries Woman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. John J. McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest who was a White House adviser to President Richard M. Nixon, has married a woman who helped him in an unsuccessful Senate campaign five years ago.

McLaughlin and Anne Dore were married in a civil ceremony here Saturday. McLaughlin was released from his religious vows by Pope Paul VI before the wedding, a friend said.

McLaughlin was a staunch Nixon defender during Nixon's last days in office. He had held the White House post for three years, until Oct. 15, 1974.

Mrs. Dore, in her 30s, helped McLaughlin when he ran against Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., in 1970. She later worked in public relations here and is employed by a private firm.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Should Mother Forgive?

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I had only one child, Frank, who always was the apple of his mother's eye.

Frank went with the same girl all through college, but he promised his mother that he would wait a year after graduation before getting married.

Well, two weeks after graduation, this girl had the wedding invitations printed up, and to make a long story short, she and Frank were married six weeks later.

Frank has no job, but the girl has one that pays well. She is also two years older than Frank is.

My problem is that my frau will have nothing to do with Frank or his wife, although my wife went through with the wedding and put on a good front.

I am all for forgetting the past and forgiving Frank for breaking his promise, but everytime I bring up the subject, my wife lets loose with a storm of abuse against the girl and the marriage.

How shall I proceed?

TORMENTED FATHER

DEAR FATHER: Firmly. Tell your wife that if she wants to bear a grudge, that's her business, but you believe in letting bygones be bygones. And then, doggone it, extend your hand in friendship to Frank and his wife. (I'm betting your wife will thaw out soon after. And if she doesn't, it's her loss.)

DEAR ABBY: I have in my employ a woman who comes five days a week to do my laundry and light housecleaning.

She is a good worker and pleasant to be around, and she came well recommended.

My problem: Little things have been disappearing lately: my husband's socks and underwear, a few towels, some handkerchiefs. Nothing very valuable, but it bothers me to think this woman would steal from me after the way I have treated her. (I have given her many things and have been extremely generous at Christmastime.)

I have no proof that she has taken anything, and I am reluctant to confront her, but I could set a "trap." Would that, in your opinion, be ethical and moral?

ANONYMOUS IN DETROIT

DEAR ANON: Either confront her or wait until you have concrete evidence. I don't subscribe to setting "traps."

DEAR ABBY: How can I get some letters back that I wrote to an old boyfriend? I asked for them, and he said no!

I would be satisfied if he would destroy them in front of me, but he refuses to do so.

I no longer feel as I did when I wrote them. What can I do about this?

CHANGE OF HEART

DEAR CHANGE: Nothing. After you sent the letters, they became the property of the receiver.

Jesuit Priest
Marries Woman

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dr. John J. McLaughlin, a Jesuit priest who was a White House adviser to President Richard M. Nixon, has married a woman who helped him in an unsuccessful Senate campaign five years ago.

McLaughlin and Anne Dore were married in a civil ceremony here Saturday. McLaughlin was released from his religious vows by Pope Paul VI before the wedding, a friend said.

McLaughlin was a staunch Nixon defender during Nixon's last days in office. He had held the White House post for three years, until Oct. 15, 1974.

Mrs. Dore, in her 30s, helped McLaughlin when he ran against Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., in 1970. She later worked in public relations here and is employed by a private firm.

Dear Abby:

By Abigail Van Buren

Should Mother Forgive?

DEAR ABBY: My wife and I had only one child, Frank, who always was the apple of his mother's eye.

Frank went with the same girl all through college, but he promised his mother that he would wait a year after graduation before getting married.

Well, two weeks after graduation, this girl had the wedding invitations printed up, and to make a long story short, she and Frank were married six weeks later.

Frank has no job, but the girl has one that pays well. She is also two years older than Frank is.

My problem is that my frau will have nothing to do with Frank or his wife—although my wife went through with the wedding and put on a good front.

I am all for forgetting the past and forgiving Frank for breaking his promise, but everytime I bring up the subject, my wife lets loose with a storm of abuse against the girl and the marriage.

How shall I proceed?

TORMENTED FATHER

DEAR FATHER: Firmly. Tell your wife that if she wants to bear a grudge, that's her business, but you believe in letting bygones be bygones. And then, doggone it, extend your hand in friendship to Frank and his wife. (I'm betting your wife will thaw out soon after. And if she doesn't, it's her loss.)

DEAR ABBY: I have in my employ a woman who comes five days a week to do my laundry and light housecleaning.

She is a good worker and pleasant to be around, and she came well recommended.

My problem: Little things have been disappearing lately: my husband's socks and underwear, a few towels, some handkerchiefs. Nothing very valuable, but it bothers me to think this woman would steal from me after the way I have treated her. (I have given her many things and have been extremely generous at Christmastime.)

I have no proof that she has taken anything, and I am reluctant to confront her, but I could set a "trap."

Would that, in your opinion, be ethical and moral?

ANONYMOUS IN DETROIT

DEAR ANON: Either confront her or wait until you have concrete evidence. I don't subscribe to setting "traps."

DEAR ABBY: How can I get some letters back that I wrote to an old boyfriend? I asked for them, and he said no!

I would be satisfied if he would destroy them in front of me, but he refuses to do so.

I no longer feel as I did when I wrote them. What can I do about this?

CHANGE OF HEART

DEAR CHANGE: Nothing. After you sent the letters, they became the property of the receiver.

Foreign Exchange Students Prepare To Return To Mexico

SUMMER IN CIRCLEVILLE—For two months, these foreign exchange students have been learning about the American way of life. Guillermo Nunez, Claudia Ortiz, Carlos Peredo and Patrick Gogordan, have been visiting Circleville from Mexico City.

By ANDREA PORTER
Journalism Intern

As summer comes to a close, the foreign exchange students are preparing to return to Mexico. They will take home good memories, as well as two months of learning experience. Four of the students have been staying with three related families in the area.

"It's a family affair," Mrs. Kay Ervin said when explaining the summer homes of the students from Mexico City. "My mother, Mrs. Josephine Hunter, has one of the students, my family has two, and my daughter's family, the Tim Carpenters, have one."

Claudia Ortiz spent the two months she was here with Mrs. Hunter, of 144 W. High St. She is 12-years-old and will be in the seventh grade. She has already decided that her occupation will be teaching kindergarten, when she is finished with school.

The Paul Ervin family, of Route 1, Ashville, were the "part time parents" of Carlos Peredo and Guillermo Nunez. Guillermo left last Thursday because his schooling started earlier than the others.

Carlos is going to be a lawyer. Presently, he is 13-years-old, and in the seventh grade. He enjoyed life on the Ervin's farm this summer.

Guillermo explained, "In Mexico, the farms are either very rich or very poor, there are none in between." The people who work in the country are either plantation owners, or they hardly have enough land, food or money to survive.

Guillermo will major in business administration. The 15-year-old started in the 11th grade this week.

Patrick Gogordan is staying with the Carpenter family, of Route 1, Ashville. In Mexico, he goes to a French school, takes tests in French and Spanish, and is studying the German language.

Patrick is 16-years-old, and will be in the 11th grade. He will specialize in engineering after high school.

Although all of them live in Mexico City, their individual customs differ. For example, Claudia's family has six meals during the day, while the others eat at three specific times.

Meal times for Guillermo, Patrick and Carlos are 7:30 a.m., 2:30 and 8:00 p.m. If they are not hungry, they must still sit down with the family.

Guillermo noticed the difference in teenage dating customs. In Mexico, when he is out with his girlfriend, her 23-year-old brother must accompany them. Guillermo said sometimes when his 19-year-old sister goes out on a date, he must chaperone them.

Mrs. Ervin said they tried to give the children an idea of what everyday life is like. "We didn't take them to all the landmark places, because they would get the false idea that it is a constant vacation in the United States."

Although they have done a lot of swimming, camping and picnicing, they enjoyed being on the farm the most.

Mrs. Ervin said it was new to them to be able to pick blackberries and apples, and see the fruits made into food dishes immediately.

The students were sent here through the International Fellowship, Inc. During a full year, they send about 2,000 students to other countries.

Ohio Reformatory Used For Movie

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A pair of unlikely — and unlucky — "crooks" will rendezvous at the medium-security Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield this week.

Movie stars James Caan and Elliott Gould are starring in the film "Harry and Walter Go to New York." The reformatory is the setting for on-location filming of the spoof about the pair of crooks in New England in 1892.

Harry and Walter are aspiring vaudevillians who turn their talents to safecracking. Diane Keaton as a zealous social reformer provides some help, while English actor Michael Caine gets in the pair's way as a famous, flamboyant safecracker.

The reformatory, built in the 1890's, serves as the meeting place of the film's major characters in the original comedy screenplay by Robert Kaufman and John Byrum. A rock quarry outside of Columbus will also be used the following week for filming a scene involving inmates mining.

The pros will be joined by 65 inmates at the prison and 250 area residents hired as extras by Columbia Pictures.

Potential actors lined up about 7 a.m. one day last week when Columbia began to interview for extras. Columbia had said it wanted to hire only those persons who were unemployed, so they hired at the local employment office.

More than enough amateurs showed up for their chance to be on the wide screen and pick up a few bucks at the same time.

"I don't want to be a real famous dude or anything," said Martin Meeker of Mansfield, one of those on line. "But I wouldn't mind getting in a closeup scene and saying a few words."

George Palmer, a New York City resident who was laid off three months ago by a law firm on Wall Street and now lives in the area, said, "I will take any part as long as it means work and money."

"I hope to get a part so I can go to the movies and say I am standing over there in the back row somewhere," said Clay Thomas, a service station attendant who was laid off in June.

The inmates who participate will be compensated by Columbia with payment into the Inmate Industrial and Entertainment Fund which goes to the state to purchase recreation equipment.

New LEHS Students May Register

New high school students who have moved into the Logan Elm district may register at the high school 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4 p.m. this week.

Jim Fletcher, high school guidance counselor, said it would be helpful if the new students brought their school records with them.

Justice Department Watchdog Plan Being Studied By Levi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi is considering appointing an internal Justice Department "watchdog" to investigate any future department scandals.

Levi and Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler Jr. are weighing the question while dealing with allegations of misdeeds in four major department agencies — the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The department as a whole and several of its branches have been brushed with accusations of scandal, some serious and some mere personality clashes, over the past three years.

The peak, of course, was Watergate and charges that department officials helped in the cover-up. The key department officials involved in the Watergate case all have resigned or retired, and their successors now search for ways to avoid being suspected of covering up crimes in the future.

Elliot L. Richardson, the attorney general who Nixon forced out of office during the Watergate case, proposed creating an inspector general's office as an independent investigator of department scandals.

His successor, William B. Saxbe, issued an order establishing such an operation last January. But the order took effect about two weeks before Saxbe resigned and never has been implemented.

Levi and Tyler now are considering whether to create a permanent full-time investigative office or to employ the same technique on a temporary basis in response to specific allegations.

In an interview, Tyler said department officials were on the verge of creating the permanent office at the time he became deputy attorney general four months ago.

"I said 'Wait a minute. Once you set up an office, you have to be sure there's something for them to do, you can't have everybody sitting around contemplating the walls,'" Tyler related.

Tyler indicated that he leans toward the ad hoc approach, with any allegations of misdeeds triggering a probe by department officials not connected with the accused agency. But he said, "I wouldn't say that's final. It's still very much up in the air."

Steel Price Hikes Said Not Enough

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Some U.S. steelmakers are saying the price increases announced last week aren't large enough to cover planned expenditures for plant expansion.

Industry Week magazine said today steelmakers whose main product lines are sheet and strip report that "unless there are further price hikes in the near future, capital expenditures likely will have to be trimmed."

Among those reporting threats to their plans to boost capacity are Armco Steel Corp. and Jones & Laughlin.

Armco officials were quoted as saying "any further expansion is completely out of the question" unless financial returns are restored to at least 1974 levels.

Industry Week said J&L already has suspended work on a $14 million expansion project at its Louisville, Ohio, stainless steel facilities.

The nation's steel producers have made commitments for some 20 million new tons of capacity to meet expected increases in demand by 1980. However, some other producers may follow J&L's lead in putting off their expansion plans unless they get price relief, IW said.

Armco says it has been losing $2 million a month since January on its flat-rolled steel operations. The company announced a 9 per cent price hike Aug. 5 but rolled that increase back last week to keep it in line with a 5.7 per cent hike announced by U.S. Steel Corp., the industry leader.

Canning Lid Distribution Uneven

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 1975 crop of lids should stretch far enough for veteran home canners to put away their usual amounts of fruits and vegetables, according to government data and figures supplied by the three major manufacturers.

The unanswered question is whether the distribution networks will get the lids to the home canners.

A shortage throughout much of this year has brought complaints from homemakers who say they were unable to store usual amounts of fruits, vegetables, jams and other foods.

Information compiled by the office of Nancy Harvey Steorts, consumer affairs adviser to Agriculture

Secretary Earl L. Butz, did not deal with supplies or demand for complete jar-and-lid sets for new home-canners or veterans expanding the amount of food they're putting up this year.

Pulling the companies' figures together shows that 535.7 million lids were destined for the market from mid-July to first frosts, the traditional end of the canning season.

Another 1 billion already had been shipped, and the seven new entrants in the once-stagnant canning equipment industry reported production for the whole season at about 540 million — for a grand total of 2.1 billion lids.

The major companies estimate 20 to 40 per cent of adult women canned food in 1973 and 1974, the years on which their sales-based allocations by state are based for this year.

The Census Bureau said there are roughly 62 million women in the nation between 20 and 70 years old.

Assuming 30 per cent engage in canning, there would be 18.6 million "oldtime canners" who need an average of 103 lids each — or 1,915,800,000 lids nationally against a supply of 2,100,000,000.

If one key manufacturer expects to produce 1 billion of the separate, nonreusable lids, as reported, the supply would be closer to 2.3 billion, Mrs. Steorts said.

But distribution is not so orderly.

For example, California, with about 10 per cent of the U.S. population, has been allocated 30 per cent of the major makers' lids and 40 per cent of the season total: at least 60.77 million lids.

A large part has already been shipped, since in much of the state growing and canning start earlier. Of 535.7 million lids remaining from the three makers, 3.8 per cent were earmarked for California.

The other 20 states destined then to get more than 10 million lids included New York, 8.32 per cent of the balance; Michigan, 7.45; Pennsylvania, 6.44; Ohio, 5.85; Oregon, 5.53; Washington State, 4.78; Wisconsin, 4.16; Utah, 3.94; Illinois, 3.5; Iowa, 3.46; Minnesota, 3.36; Kentucky, 3.35; West Virginia, 3.08; Missouri and Tennessee, 2.88 each; Idaho, 2.58; Indiana and North Carolina, 2.38 each; Kansas, 2.03, and Nebraska, 1.99.

Breast Cancer Ad Proves Worth

MIAMI (AP) — Bare breasts, long barred from family television screens, are showing up on daytime and late-night TV in advertisements designed to teach women how to test for breast cancer.

"We reach a lot of people and it's possible to anger or offend some of them, but if it's important to do it, then we're going to," says Doug Duperrault, program director for WFLA in Tampa.

Frank Struzzi, film manager of WCKT in Miami, says no viewers have complained to his station about the ad. "If it just helps one person, I feel very good about it," he said.

Duperrault, who produced the ad as a volunteer for the Florida Cancer Society, says the one-minute spot has been used many times by some 35 stations all over the state.

Alabama and Mississippi have requested copies, and Duperrault hopes Florida's success means the ad will be adopted for use nationwide.

"We're pioneering with it — anything showing a bare breast right in the home would be offensive to some people," he said. "But the time was right. The publicity spurred by Betty Ford and Happy Rockefeller made women want to know how to examine themselves for cancer."

The wives of both the president and vice president underwent operations for removal of cancerous breasts.

Breast cancer is the leading cause of death among women, hitting one out of 15. There is a 40 to 45 per cent survival rate, but doctors say early detection could reduce the number of deaths by half.

"My feeling is if you're going to show a woman how to examine herself, then you show her. You don't use puppets or women in leotards — you show exactly how," Duperrault said.

Duperrault said that only one station in St. Petersburg refused to use the spot. "The others were 100 per cent positive," he said.

"Complaints don't exceed a couple of dozen — we're happy with that. In fact, we got letters with donations."

Clean energy for tomorrow ...gas from coal.

There is enough coal in the ground to last for centuries. But, with our striving for a cleaner environment, much of it can't be used.

Columbia Gas is working on processes that will convert this coal into clean-burning gas. In cooperation with the government, and independently, Columbia is moving ahead in coal gasification research. Experimental plants are in operation, and making progress.

The first commercial coal gasification plant is still far down the road, and it will be expensive. But, with the development of coal gasification, a whole new industry will be born, with jobs for thousands of people. And this new source for gas will help the nation reduce its growing dependence on foreign supplies of energy.

Coal gasification will mean more energy for tomorrow. And even with higher costs, gas will still be the most economical fuel for your home.

COLUMBIAGAS is doing something about the energy crisis.

MARSHALL MOVES—Sophomore Dave Marshall eats up yardage to set up the third touchdown for the Circleville Tigers Saturday in a scrimmage with Groveport on the Red and Black turf. Both teams scored three touchdowns but the Tigers kicked on conversion and ran for another while Groveport managed to kick two conversions. All three Groveport scores came against the Tigers second and third team defenses. Circleville scores came on a 62-yard run by Frank Merrill, a 17-yard gallop by Greg Berrigan and Joe Leahy on a 15-yard burst up the middle. "We were pleased with all phases of our game, especially the consistency of our offense," coach Larry Cook commented. "Our backs ran well and our offensive linemen hit out well and maintained their blocks against a strong multiple defense of Groveport," Cook stated. Circleville will host AAA Dayton Franklin 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Raiders Top Heavy With Talent

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Right now, the Oakland Raiders' biggest worry is how they'll live with the National Football League's new 43-player roster limit.

"I fought like mad to keep it at 47," says Al Davis, head man of the organization which may have the NFL's deepest stockpile of prime talent.

All-Pro linebacker Ted Hendricks, who signed on with the Raiders as a free agent early this month, is working out now with the second-string defensive unit which also includes former All-Pro Bubba Smith. Several first-round draft picks from recent years still have apprentice status with the team.

The Raiders have won seven division titles in the past eight years and their 12-2 regular-season record last year with the NFL's best. Another American Conference West crown seems certain.

But all the Raiders' depth and talent has never paid off with victory at Super Bowl time. They've only reached that ultimate test once.

The latest post-season frustration was the 24-13 loss to Pittsburgh in last season's AFC title game. The Raiders, who handled the Steelers rather easily in a 17-0 regular-season triumph, gained just 29 yards rushing in the championship game.

"We lost, so we've got to live with that statistic," says Coach John Madden. "But how many yards did we pass for in that game? How did we rank in rushing over the whole season?"

For the record, Ken Stabler's passes accounted for 271 yards in the final game, with Cliff Branch snaring nine for 186 yards. And Oakland's rushing attack featuring Marv Hubbard and Clarence Davis was third best in the NFL during the season.

Stabler, in his first full season at quarterback, was named NFL Player of the Year after passing for 2,469 yards and 26 touchdowns. Branch moved onto the starting team after Mike Siani was injured early in the season and the former University of Colorado football and track star earned All-Pro honors with his 60 catches good for 1,092 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Barring injuries, the Raiders will open the season with the same offensive lineup they used at the end of last year. On defense, the only probable changes are at linebacker spots, with Monte Johnson threatening longtime starter Dan Connors in the middle and Hendricks possibly pushing Phil Villapiano or Gerald Irons aside.

The Miami Dolphins, whom the Raiders meet in a regular-season opener on the night of Sept. 22 in the Orange Bowl, should have the running game, despite the loss of Larry Csonka, to provide a good test.

The Raiders' defense allowed 301 yards per game, seventh highest in the AFC last year, but only 228 total points, third lowest in the conference. Ray Guy's high punts, averaging an NFL-leading 42.2 yards, forced opponents to start most offensive drives far from the Oakland goal line.

ABCD Tournament Held At Country Club

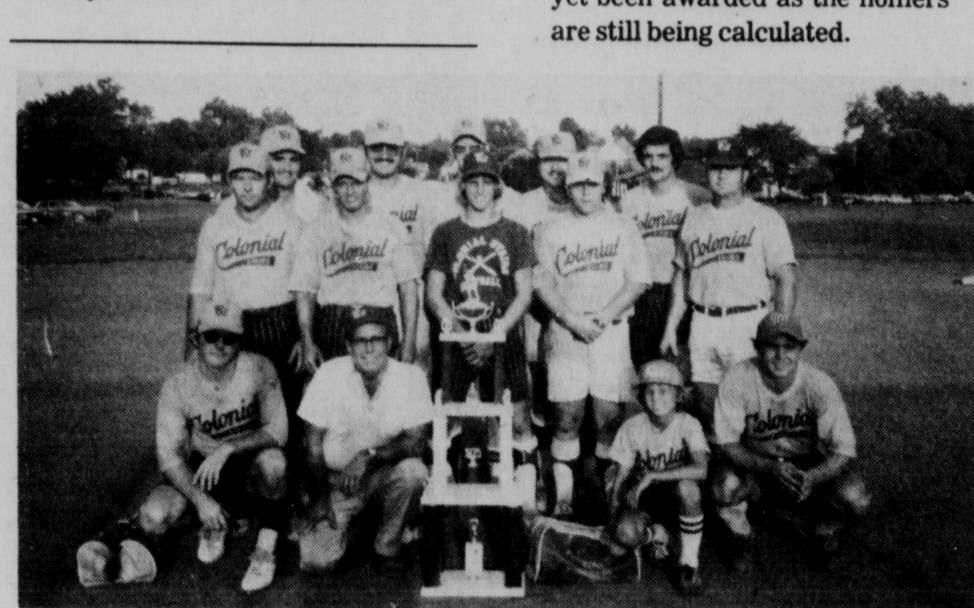

Rick Spires' team tied Bill Weldon's team for first place in the ABCD tournament at Pickaway Country Club Sunday.

Luther Ferrell's team was second while teams captained by Jerry Jones, Steve Helwagen, Steve Brudzinski and Mark McFadden tied for third.

Sept. 20 has been scheduled as member-guest day. Two man teams will compete with a dinner following.

Sets Season Record

Jim Pollock of Circleville set a season track record for 2-year-old fillies at Scioto Downs Friday, driving Steady Josie to a win in 2:01.3.

CHAMPS—Colonial Stars defeated Chillicothe's Giovanni's, 4-2, to win the fifth annual K of C tournament at Ted Lewis Park. First place trophy was donated by PPG Industries, Giovanni's second place trophy by RCA, Scioto Coca Cola Bottling Co. donated the third place trophy to Jacks Bar and Grill of Circleville and Shawnee Trophies of Chillicothe won the fourth place trophy donated by Van Camp Paving.

Bengals Dominate Packers; Win 27-10

CINCINNATI (AP)—Exhibition game or not, the Cincinnati Bengals were elated after not only defeating the Green Bay Packers, but actually dominating them.

"In the past games we always more or less tied them both on offense and defense," said veteran defensive tackle Ron Carpenter.

"But this is the first time we ever really beat them. I mean the offense was biting off five and eight yards a play and the defense really bottled them up."

"Their only real scoring play was a 52-yard field goal and I'll give any team as many chances as they want to try 52-yard field goals. They can't win doing that."

"They are doing fundamentally very well the things that they are doing," said Coach Paul Brown of the Packers under freshman Coach Bart Starr. "He needs time—they need time, everybody knows that."

"You learn more in a loss," said Starr, after losing 27-10, "it points out some of your weaknesses and we had quite a few pointed out."

"I was hoping that Steve Odom's run would turn the game around but it didn't."

Odom took the second half kickoff on the goal line and streaked for a 100-yard touchdown.

"We're not the first team he's done that to," chuckled Brown. "And we won't be the last. I wasn't concerned though. We had a lot of young people in there and they'll know better next time."

"Green Bay is Green Bay," said Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson, who predicted that 1975 will be "Cincinnati's year."

"We have a veteran, cohesive team now and barring injuries, we will be able to do pretty much everything."

"Our running backs are just fantastic but better than running, they are the best receivers in the league. It's a basic part of the Cincinnati offense."

Anderson, playing only the first half, hit 15 of 21 passes for 148 yards and three touchdowns, two of them long sprints by running backs Essex Johnson and Lenvil Elliott. End Bob Trumpy caught the other one.

Circleville Stars Win Championship At Hilliard

Circleville's 10-year-old All-Stars topped Shadewood Red, 11-10, Saturday to win the championship of the Hilliard Tournament.

Tommy Tomlinson and Jim Bevins combined to hurl the victory.

John Cordle and Tommy Tomlinson led the Circleville attack with a single and double apiece while Brad Miller, Jeff McGowan, Ralph Jones and Scott Heeter each rapped a single.

Darren King and Tommy Tomlinson were named to the All-Tournament team and received trophies.

Circleville players were awarded individual trophies. Shadewood Red received trophies for finishing second and Northwestern was awarded the third place trophy.

Individual plaques were awarded to members of the Marysville team for best sportsmanship.

TOP HITTER—Rock Davis of Lowes won the most hits trophy, donated by Prairie Lanes in the K of C slow pitch tournament. The most home run trophy, donated by Scioto Valley Bowling, has not yet been awarded as the homers are still being calculated.

All three county schools opened their scrimmages Saturday with Teays Valley hosting Columbus North, Westfall at home with Liberty Union and Logan Elm playing host to Adena.

Teays Valley's Vikings scored two touchdowns to Columbus North's one in their encounter.

Greg Cline and Mike Wilson tallied the touchdowns for the Vikings while the Columbus score came on a recovered fumble in the endzone.

Teays Valley will host Columbus South 7 p.m. Tuesday in their second scrimmage of the season.

Westfall failed to score while Liberty Union crossed the goal line three times. "We made some early season mistakes that hurt us but we are not discouraged and will be ready when the season opens," Westfall John Glanton commented.

Westfall will hold its second scrimmage 8 p.m. Wednesday when they host Amanda-Clearcreek.

"I thought we did very well against Adena," Logan Elm coach Perry Griffith stated. "We had a chance to look at all of our boys and averaged 5 yards a carry with our first unit."

"Defensively, we stopped the run very well and feel that we are way ahead of where we were at this time last year. We didn't have any injuries and are sound physically," Griffith commented.

Logan Elm will host Madison Plains 6:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Foreign Exchange Students Prepare To Return To Mexico

SUMMER IN CIRCLEVILLE—For two months, these foreign exchange students have been learning about the American way of life. Guillermo Nunez, Claudia Ortiz, Carlos Peredo and Patrick Gogordan, have been visiting Circleville from Mexico City.

By ANDREA PORTER
Journalism Intern

As summer comes to a close, the foreign exchange students are preparing to return to Mexico. They will take home good memories, as well as two months of learning experience. Four of the students have been staying with three related families in the area.

"It's a family affair," Mrs. Kay Ervin said when explaining the summer homes of the students from Mexico City. "My mother, Mrs. Josephine Hunter, has one of the students, my family has two, and my daughter's family, the Tim Carpenters, have one."

Claudia Ortiz spent the two months she was here with Mrs. Hunter, of 144 W. High St. She is 12-years-old and will be in the seventh grade. She has already decided that her occupation will be teaching kindergarten, when she is finished with school.

The Paul Ervin family, of Route 1, Ashville, were the "part time parents" of Carlos Peredo and Guillermo Nunez. Guillermo left last Thursday because his schooling started earlier than the others.

Carlos is going to be a lawyer. Presently, he is 13-years-old, and in the seventh grade. He enjoyed life on the Ervin's farm this summer.

Guillermo explained, "In Mexico, the farms are either very rich or very poor, there are none in between." The people who work in the country are either plantation owners, or they hardly have enough land, food or money to survive.

Guillermo will major in business administration. The 15-year-old started in the 11th grade this week.

Patrick Gogordan is staying with the Carpenter family, of Route 1, Ashville. In Mexico, he goes to a French school, takes tests in French and Spanish, and is studying the German language.

Patrick is 16-years-old, and will be in the 11th grade. He will specialize in engineering after high school.

Justice Department Watchdog Plan Being Studied By Levi

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Edward H. Levi is considering appointing an internal Justice Department "watchdog" to investigate any future department scandals.

Levi and Deputy Atty. Gen. Harold R. Tyler Jr. are weighing the question while dealing with allegations of misdeeds in four major department agencies — the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Administration, the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, and the Immigration and Naturalization Service.

The department as a whole and several of its branches have been brushed with accusations of scandal, some serious and some mere personality clashes, over the past three years.

The peak, of course, was Watergate and charges that department officials helped in the cover-up. The key department officials involved in the Watergate case all have resigned or retired, and their successors now search for ways to avoid being suspected of covering up crimes in the future.

Elliot L. Richardson, the attorney general who Nixon forced out of office during the Watergate case, proposed creating an inspector general's office as an independent investigator of department scandals.

His successor, William B. Saxbe, issued an order establishing such an operation last January. But the order took effect about two weeks before Saxbe resigned and never has been implemented.

Levi and Tyler now are considering whether to create a permanent full-time investigative office or to employ the same technique on a temporary basis in response to specific allegations.

In an interview, Tyler said department officials were on the verge of creating the permanent office at the time he became deputy attorney general four months ago.

"I said 'Wait a minute. Once you set up an office, you have to be sure there's something for them to do, you can't have everybody sitting around contemplating the walls,'" Tyler related.

Tyler indicated that he leans toward the ad hoc approach, with any allegations of misdeeds triggering a probe by department officials not connected with the accused agency. But he said, "I wouldn't say that's final. It's still very much up in the air."

Steel Price Hikes Said Not Enough

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Some U.S. steelmakers are saying the price increases announced last week aren't large enough to cover planned expenditures for plant expansion.

Industry Week magazine said today steelmakers whose main product lines are sheet and strip report that "unless there are further price hikes in the near future, capital expenditures likely will have to be trimmed."

Among those reporting threats to their plans to boost capacity are Armco Steel Corp. and Jones & Laughlin.

Armco officials were quoted as saying "any further expansion is completely out of the question" unless financial returns are restored to at least 1974 levels.

Industry Week said J&L already has suspended work on a $14 million expansion project at its Louisville, Ohio, stainless steel facilities.

The nation's steel producers have made commitments for some 20 million new tons of capacity to meet expected increases in demand by 1980. However, some other producers may follow J&L's lead in putting off their expansion plans unless they get price relief, IW said.

Armco says it has been losing $2 million a month since January on its flat-rolled steel operations. The company announced a 9 per cent price hike Aug. 5 but rolled that increase back last week to keep it in line with a 5.7 per cent hike announced by U.S. Steel Corp., the industry leader.

Although all of them live in Mexico City, their individual customs differ. For example, Claudia's family has six meals during the day, while the others eat at three specific times.

Meal times for Guillermo, Patrick and Carlos are 7:30 a.m., 2:30 and 8:00 p.m. If they are not hungry, they must still sit down with the family.

Guillermo noticed the difference in teenage dating customs. In Mexico, when he is out with his girlfriend, her 23-year-old brother must accompany them. Guillermo said sometimes when his 19-year-old sister goes out on a date, he must chaperone them.

Mrs. Ervin said they tried to give the children an idea of what everyday life is like. "We didn't take them to all the landmark places, because they would get the false idea that it is a constant vacation in the United States."

Although they have done a lot of swimming, camping and picnicing, they enjoyed being on the farm the most.

Mrs. Ervin said it was new to them to be able to pick blackberries and apples, and see the fruits made into food dishes immediately.

The students were sent here through the International Fellowship, Inc. During a full year, they send about 2,000 students to other countries.

Ohio Reformatory Used For Movie

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP) — A pair of unlikely — and unlucky — "crooks" will rendezvous at the medium-security Ohio State Reformatory at Mansfield this week.

Movie stars James Cagney and Elliott Gould are starring in the film "Harry and Walter Go to New York." The reformatory is the setting for on-location filming of the spoof about the pair of crooks in New England in 1892.

Harry and Walter are aspiring vaudevillians who turn their talents to safecracking. Diane Keaton as a zealous social reformer provides some help, while English actor Michael

State's Jobless Rate Declines

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — There was a moderate decline in Ohio unemployment in July, lowering the unemployment rate from 9.1 to 8.9 per cent, the Ohio Bureau of Employment Services said Saturday.

The OBES said unemployment dipped from 446,000 in June to 433,000 in July. Total employment, however, slipped .9 per cent to 4,424,000, the OBES said.

The bureau said the slip in total employment resulted largely from schools being closed during the summer months.

Auto industry plants were also shut down temporarily during the month for annual model changeovers, it noted.

Top Homemaker Named At Fair

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Phyllis Pollock, 36, of New Philadelphia, was crowned Ohio Homemaker of the Year Saturday at the Ohio State Fair.

Mrs. Pollock, a mother of four, was named during the arts and crafts festival. Her husband, Wayne, is a foundry foreman.

The Pollock children are Debra, 4; Scott, 5; Gregg, 10, and John, 15.

Mrs. Pollock was among of 10 contestants for the title.

Mainly About People

Caine gets in the pair's way as a famous, flamboyant safecracker.

The reformatory, built in the 1890's, serves as the meeting place of the film's major characters in the original comedy screenplay by Robert Kaufman and John Byrum. A rock quarry outside of Columbus will also be used the following week for filming a scene involving inmates mining.

The pros will be joined by 65 inmates at the prison and 250 area residents hired as extras by Columbia Pictures.

Potential actors lined up about 7 a.m. one day last week when Columbia began to interview for extras.

Columbia had said it wanted to hire only those persons who were unemployed, so they hired at the local employment office.

More than enough amateurs showed up for their chance to be on the wide screen and pick up a few bucks at the same time.

"I don't want to be a real famous dude or anything," said Martin Meeker of Mansfield, one of those on line. "But I wouldn't mind getting in a closeup scene and saying a few words."

George Palmer, a New York City resident who was laid off three months ago by a law firm on Wall Street and now lives in the area, said, "I will take any part as long as it means work and money."

"I hope to get a part so I can go to the movies and say I am standing over there in the back row somewhere," said Clay Thomas, a service station attendant who was laid off in June.

The inmates who participate will be compensated by Columbia with payment into the Inmate Industrial and Entertainment Fund which goes to the state to purchase recreation equipment.

Jim Moorehead, Columbus, formerly of Circleville, is a surgical patient in room 867 University Hospital, Columbus.

Taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital were William Herbert Dickson, 18, and Garnet L. Bowen Jr., 14, both of Columbus.

The accident was investigated by the Circleville Highway Patrol Post.

Pirates, Reds End In Standoff

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds, possible foes in the National League playoffs, have ended the regular season in a standoff.

The Pirates defeated the Reds 5-1 here Sunday as Jerry Reuss posted his 11th straight home victory with the help of a homer and a triple by Al Oliver.

Sunday's loss was the Reds' third in four weekend games here, but they beat the Pirates four straight a week ago in Cincinnati.

Each team finished the regular season series with six victories, and each side was 4-2 at home.

"The Pirates have a good team," said third baseman Pete Rose of the Reds, runaway leaders in the National League West.

"But we have a better one, and we'd like to prove it in the playoffs," Rose added.

Sunday's victory was the Pirates' fifth in six home games after returning from a dismal 2-12 road trip.

"On that road trip, we just weren't hitting, and the only way we can win is to hit consistently," said Pirate Coach Don Leppert.

The Pirates lead the National League East by three games over second-place St. Louis and 3½ games over Philadelphia, which fell into third by losing a doubleheader Sunday in San Diego.

The Pirates were out-hit 9-5 Sunday, but crucial hits were provided by Oliver and Rennie Stennett.

On Saturday, it was Stennett whose two-out error opened the way for seven unearned runs that helped Cincinnati defeat Pittsburgh 12-7 on national television.

On Sunday, Stennett led off the Pirates first with a single and scored on a triple by Oliver, who then scored on a sacrifice fly by Willie Stargell.

The sacrifice fly marked Stargell's return to the Pirate lineup after a 12-game absence due to a fractured rib.

In the third inning, Stennett singled and scored when Oliver hit his 15th homer of the season. The belt to left-center came off losing pitcher Gary Nolan.

Richie Zisk opened the Pirate seventh with a double off Pedro Borbon. Then Zisk moved to third on a fly ball and scored on a squeeze bunt by Duffy Dyer.

Reuss, 14-9 overall, lost to the Expos in Pittsburgh on April 12, but he's won 11 in a row at home since then.

"We always seem to play better at home. It's just one of those things," he said.

The lone Cincinnati run came in the first inning when Joe Morgan singled, took third on a single by Rose and scored on a sacrifice fly by Johnny Bench.

While Ed Halicki was throwing zeroes at the New York Mets in San Francisco, the Dodgers were coming up empty in Los Angeles.

Not that they didn't score, hit or steal bases. But while Halicki was the reason the Mets lost a 6-0 no-hitter Sunday, the Dodgers had themselves to blame for a 5-3, 14-inning loss to Montreal.

Virtually everything that could have gone wrong went that way for Los Angeles, which wasted 11 innings of four-hit pitching by Don Sutton; had an apparent winning run nullified when an illegal Dodgers bat was discovered, and saw the winning Expos run score on a wild pitch by Mike Marshall.

The Mets, at least, were overpowered by a pitcher who permitted only four batted balls to reach the outfield; one who missed the strike zone only 35 times in 122 pitches. Four batted balls to the Los Angeles infield turned into errors — two by Dave Lopes and two by Phil Russell — and then there was Marshall's toss away from the strike zone and away from catcher Steve Yeager.

It was the classic contrast of perfection and bombast at two major league parks in the same state. Halicki, once a Met fan, owned them Sunday — just as mistakes owned the Dodgers.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Houston 8, Chicago 4; St. Louis 6, Atlanta 2 and Pittsburgh 5, Cincinnati 1 while San Diego swept Philadelphia 7-2 and 7-6 in 12 innings.

Mets 9-0, Giants 5-6

"I was," said Ed Halicki, "oblivious to everything. It was like a dream. Then all the guys poured out of the dugout and I realized what I had done."

Somehow, he must not have heard the 24,000-plus voices at Candlestick Park who were cheering every pitch from the sixth inning on. They went wild when the no-hitter was completed by the 6-foot-7 hurler whose love for the Mets once took him to Baltimore to watch them play in the 1969 World Series.

"I made some sloppy pitches, but I got away with them," said the 24-year-old right-hander. "I don't see how (Felix) Millan missed that strikeout pitch in the ninth. It was a hanging slider."

Millan and nine others struck out, only two walked and one reached on an error while the Giants struck for two runs in the first, fifth and seventh.

It was the sixth no-hitter against the Mets in their 14-year history and the first in the National League since Atlanta's Phil Niekro turned the trick against San Diego on Aug. 5, 1973. The last no-hitter by a San Francisco pitcher was hurled by Gaylord Perry against St. Louis on Sept. 17, 1968.

In the opener, Dave Kingman hit a giant grand slam home run to help beat his former teammates. The celebration didn't last long.

Expos 5, Dodgers 3

The Dodgers could have won their game in the sixth inning, but Bill Buckner's bat was ruled illegal after he had cracked an apparently tie-breaking hit. Buckner was called out and the run was canceled.

Plate Umpire Doug Harvey had thrown the bat aside so that it wouldn't interfere with a possible play at the plate. Then he made the discovery — the bat had grooves in it.

"An illegal bat — it's as simple as that," said Harvey. "They (batters) use an ice pick, a can opener, something in between the grain of the wood. It gives the bat a grip. It's an old trick. It's happened before."

"I think it's silly," replied Dodgers Manager Walter Alton. "I don't think it helps a batter at all. I doubt if great hitters, Ruth, Musial, Aaron, did that to a bat."

"The most disgusting thing of all was wasting that kind of pitching," he said.

Gary Carter walked with one out in a 2-2 game and moved to third on Pete Mackanin's single. Then Marshall let fly the pitch that sent Carter home and led to two others.

Lopes, who had stolen three bases in the game and a major league record 38 in a row, wanted a fourth steal in the Dodgers' 12th. But he was cut down by catcher Carter, the last man to achieve the feat — on June 4 — before Lopes went on his record theft rampage.

Astros 8, Cubs 4

Jose Cruz hit two home runs and Cliff Johnson hit his fifth in the last five games to power the Astros past to an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Bob Watson also cracked his 16th for Houston and Wilbur Howard had four hits. Andy Thornton homered for the Cubs.

Cardinals 6, Braves 2

"Speed is the name of the game, no matter what you're doing," said St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst after Lou Brock stole the 800th and 801st bases of his career and Willie Davis got out of a first-inning rundown to help the Cardinals roll over the Atlanta Braves.

Padres 7-7, Phillies 2-6

Randy Jones picked up 17th victory with an eight-hitter in the opener before Bobby Tolan's 12th-inning single completed the sweep for the Padres.

Al Geiberger Wins Golf Tournament

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "I threw everything I had at him," sighed Dave Stockton. "It wasn't enough."

Some might call it fate. Certainly it was unusual, since Al Geiberger nearly bypassed Fort Worth because of the blazing Texas heat and other considerations.

But Stockton's critique best capsuled the climax of the $250,000 Tournament Players Championship, an event which some day may become one of the world's classics.

Stockton and Geiberger, his California hunting buddy, played Sunday like the TPC already was a kisser's cousin to the Masters, if not the U.S. Open.

It was literally a duel in the sun with Geiberger spurning Colonial's Trinity River treachery for a 69, a record 270 total and a three-shot victory over the bewildered Stockton.

It was a $50,000 triumph.

Stockton also shot a closing 69, but his was a 32-37 compared to Geiberger's 36-33. There's a dramatic difference.

Stockton was amazed at Geiberger's performance.

"If someone told me I was going to be seven under par on this course and not win ...," he said, his voice trailing in bewilderment. "Anybody else but Al would not have done as well under the pressure. I can't believe shooting five rounds under par."

For the record, which erased the three-decade-old mark of 272 by Clayton Hefner, it was 66-68-67-69—270, with a sizzling 63 in Wednesday's pro-am event. Not even Ben Hogan, a five-time winner at the normal springtime Colonial National Invitation here, recorded such numbers.

MARSHALL MOVES—Sophomore Dave Marshall eats up yardage to set up the third touchdown for the Circleville Tigers Saturday in a scrimmage with Groveport on the Red and Black turf. Both teams scored three touchdowns but the Tigers kicked on conversion and ran for another while Groveport managed to kick two conversions. All three Groveport scores came against the Tigers second and third team defenses. Circleville scores came on a 62-yard run by Frank Merrill, a 17-yard gallop by Greg Berrigan and Joe Leahy on a 15-yard burst up the middle. "We were pleased with all phases of our game, especially the consistency of our offense," coach Larry Cook commented. "Our backs ran well and our offensive linemen hit out well and maintained their blocks against a strong multiple defense of Groveport," Cook stated. Circleville will host AAA Dayton Franklin 6:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Raiders Top Heavy With Talent

SANTA ROSA, Calif. (AP) — Right now, the Oakland Raiders' biggest worry is how they'll live with the National Football League's new 43-player roster limit.

"I fought like mad to keep it at 47," says Al Davis, head man of the organization which may have the NFL's deepest stockpile of prime talent.

All-Pro linebacker Ted Hendricks, who signed on with the Raiders as a free agent early this month, is working out now with the second-string defensive unit which also includes former All-Pro Bubba Smith. Several first-round draft picks from recent years still have apprentice status with the team.

The Raiders have won seven division titles in the past eight years and their 12-2 regular-season record last year with the NFL's best. Another American Conference West crown seems certain.

But all the Raiders' depth and talent has never paid off with victory at Super Bowl time. They've only reached that ultimate test once.

The latest post-season frustration was the 24-13 loss to Pittsburgh in last season's AFC title game. The Raiders, who handled the Steelers rather easily in a 17-0 regular-season triumph, gained just 29 yards rushing in the championship game.

"We lost, so we've got to live with that statistic," says Coach John Madden. "But how many yards did we pass for in that game? How did we rank in rushing over the whole season?"

For the record, Ken Stabler's passes accounted for 271 yards in the final game, with Cliff Branch snaring nine for 186 yards. And Oakland's rushing attack featuring Marv Hubbard and Clarence Davis was third best in the NFL during the season.

Stabler, in his first full season at quarterback, was named NFL Player of the Year after passing for 2,469 yards and 26 touchdowns. Branch moved onto the starting team after Mike Siani was injured early in the season and the former University of Colorado football and track star earned All-Pro honors with his 60 catches good for 1,092 yards and 13 touchdowns.

Barring injuries, the Raiders will open the season with the same offensive lineup they used at the end of last year. On defense, the only probable changes are at linebacker spots, with Monte Johnson threatening longtime starter Dan Conners in the middle and Hendricks possibly pushing Phil Villapiano or Gerald Irons aside.

The Miami Dolphins, whom the Raiders meet in a regular-season opener on the night of Sept. 22 in the Orange Bowl, should have the running game, despite the loss of Larry Csonka, to provide a good test.

The Raiders' defense allowed 301 yards per game, seventh highest in the AFC last year, but only 228 total points, third lowest in the conference. Ray Guy's high punts, averaging an NFL-leading 42.2 yards, forced opponents to start most offensive drives far from the Oakland goal line.

ABCD Tournament Held At Country Club

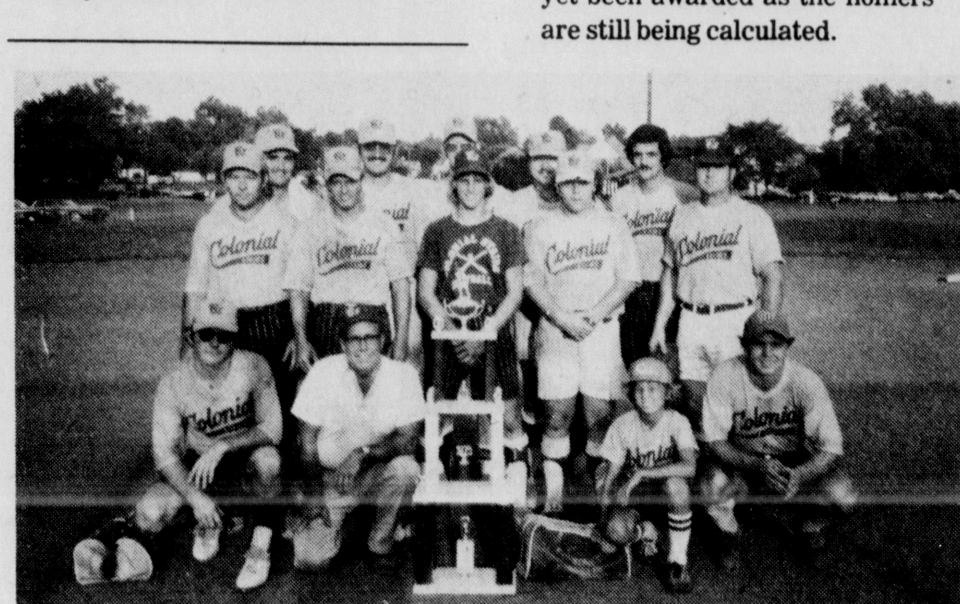

Rick Spire's team tied Bill Weldon's team for first place in the ABCD tournament at Pickaway Country Club Sunday.

Luther Ferrell's team was second while teams captained by Jerry Jones, Steve Helwagen, Steve Brudzinski and Mark McFadden tied for third.

Sept. 20 has been scheduled as member-guest day. Two man teams will compete with a dinner following.

Sets Season Record

Jim Pollock of Circleville set a season track record for 2-year-old fillies at Scioto Downs Friday, driving Steady Josie to a win in 2:01.3.

CHAMPS—Colonial Stars defeated Chillicothe's Giovanni's, 4-2, to win the fifth annual K of C tournament at Ted Lewis Park. Bengals Dominate Packers; Win 27-10

CINCINNATI (AP)—Exhibition game or not, the Cincinnati Bengals were elated after not only defeating the Green Bay Packers, but actually dominating them.

"In the past games we always more or less tied them both on offense and defense," said veteran defensive tackle Ron Carpenter.

"But this is the first time we ever really beat them. I mean the offense was biting off five and eight yards a play and the defense really bottled them up."

"Their only real scoring play was a 52-yard field goal and I'll give any team as many chances as they want to try 52-yard field goals. They can't win doing that."

"They are doing fundamentally very well the things that they are doing," said Coach Paul Brown of the Packers under freshman Coach Bart Starr. "He needs time—they need time, everybody knows that."

"You learn more in a loss," said Starr, after losing 27-10, "it points out some of your weaknesses and we had quite a few pointed out."

"I was hoping that Steve Odom's run would turn the game around but it didn't."

Odom took the second half kickoff on the goal line and streaked for a 100-yard touchdown.

"We're not the first team he's done that to," chuckled Brown. "And we won't be the last. I wasn't concerned though. We had a lot of young people in there and they'll know better next time."

"Green Bay is Green Bay," said Bengals quarterback Ken Anderson, who predicted that 1975 will be "Cincinnati's year."

"We have a veteran, cohesive team now and barring injuries, we will be able to do pretty much everything."

"Our running backs are just fantastic but better than running, they are the best receivers in the league. It's a basic part of the Cincinnati offense."

Anderson, playing only the first half, hit 15 of 21 passes for 148 yards and three touchdowns, two of them long sprints by running backs Essex Johnson and Lenvil Elliott. End Bob Trumpy caught the other one.

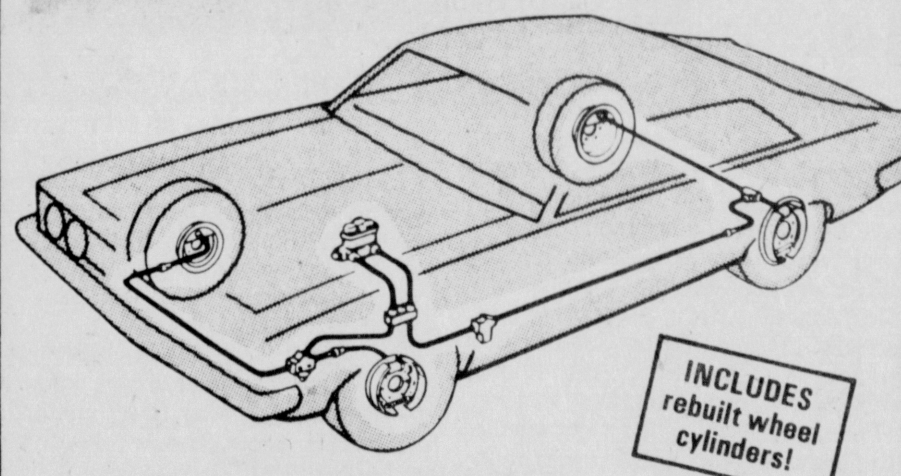

TOP HITTER—Rock Davis of Lowes won the most hits trophy, donated by Prairie Lanes in the K of C slow pitch tournament. The most home run trophy, donated by Scioto Valley Bowling, has not yet been awarded as the homers are still being calculated.

Pirates, Reds End In Standoff

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Pirates and the Cincinnati Reds, possible foes in the National League playoffs, have ended the regular season in a standoff.

The Pirates defeated the Reds 5-1 here Sunday as Jerry Reuss posted his 11th straight home victory with the help of a homer and a triple by Al Oliver.

Sunday's loss was the Reds' third in four weekend games here, but they beat the Pirates four straight a week ago in Cincinnati.

Each team finished the regular season series with six victories, and each side was 4-2 at home.

"The Pirates have a good team," said third baseman Pete Rose of the Reds, runaway leaders in the National League West.

"But we have a better one, and we'd like to prove it in the playoffs," Rose added.

Sunday's victory was the Pirates' fifth in six home games after returning from a dismal 2-12 road trip.

"On that road trip, we just weren't hitting, and the only way we can win is to hit consistently," said Pirate Coach Don Leppert.

The Pirates lead the National League East by three games over second-place St. Louis and 3½ games over Philadelphia, which fell into third by losing a doubleheader Sunday in San Diego.

The Pirates were out-hit 9-5 Sunday, but crucial hits were provided by Oliver and Rennie Stennett.

On Saturday, it was Stennett whose two-out error opened the way for seven unearned runs that helped Cincinnati defeat Pittsburgh 12-7 on national television.

On Sunday, Stennett led off the Pirates first with a single and scored on a triple by Oliver, who then scored on a sacrifice fly by Willie Stargell.

The sacrifice fly marked Stargell's return to the Pirate lineup after a 12-game absence due to a fractured rib.

In the third inning, Stennett singled and scored when Oliver hit his 15th homer of the season. The belt to left-center came off losing pitcher Gary Nolan.

Richie Zisk opened the Pirate seventh with a double off Pedro Borbon. Then Zisk moved to third on a fly ball and scored on a squeeze bunt by Duffy Dyer.

Reuss, 14-9 overall, lost to the Expos in Pittsburgh on April 12, but he's won 11 in a row at home since then.

"We always seem to play better at home. It's just one of those things," he said.

The lone Cincinnati run came in the first inning when Joe Morgan singled, took third on a single by Rose and scored on a sacrifice fly by Johnny Bench.

While Ed Halicki was throwing zeroes at the New York Mets in San Francisco, the Dodgers were coming up empty in Los Angeles.

Not that they didn't score, hit or steal bases. But while Halicki was the reason the Mets lost a 6-0 no-hitter Sunday, the Dodgers had themselves to blame for a 5-3, 14-inning loss to Montreal.

Virtually everything that could have gone wrong went that way for Los Angeles, which wasted 11 innings of four-hit pitching by Don Sutton; had an apparent winning run nullified when an illegal Dodgers bat was discovered, and saw the winning Expos run score on a wild pitch by Mike Marshall.

The Mets, at least, were overpowered by a pitcher who permitted only four batted balls to reach the outfield; one who missed the strike zone only 35 times in 122 pitches. Four batted balls to the Los Angeles infield turned into errors — two by Dave Lopes and two by Phil Russell — and then there was Marshall's toss away from the strike zone and away from catcher Steve Yeager.

It was the classic contrast of perfection and bombast at two major league parks in the same state. Halicki, once a Met fan, owned them Sunday — just as mistakes owned the Dodgers.

Elsewhere in the NL, it was Houston 8, Chicago 4; St. Louis 6, Atlanta 2 and Pittsburgh 5, Cincinnati 1 while San Diego swept Philadelphia 7-2 and 7-6 in 12 innings.

Mets 9-0, Giants 5-6
"I was," said Ed Halicki, "oblivious to everything. It was like a dream. Then all the guys poured out of the dugout and I realized what I had done."

Somehow, he must not have heard the 24,000-plus voices at Candelstick Park who were cheering every pitch from the sixth inning on. They went wild when the no-hitter was completed by the 6-foot-7 hurler whose love for the Mets once took him to Baltimore to watch them play in the 1969 World Series.

"I made some sloppy pitches, but I got away with them," said the 24-year-old right-hander. "I don't see how (Felix) Millan missed that strikeout pitch in the ninth. It was a hanging slider."

Millan and nine others struck out, only two walked and one reached on an error while the Giants struck for two runs in the first, fifth and seventh.

It was the sixth no-hitter against the Mets in their 14-year history and the first in the National League since Atlanta's Phil Niekro turned the trick against San Diego on Aug. 5, 1973. The last no-hitter by a San Francisco pitcher was hurled by Gaylord Perry against St. Louis on Sept. 17, 1968.

In the opener, Dave Kingman hit a giant grand slam home run to help beat his former teammates. The celebration didn't last long.

Expos 5, Dodgers 3
The Dodgers could have won their game in the sixth inning, but Bill Buckner's bat was ruled illegal after he had cracked an apparently tie-breaking hit. Buckner was called out and the run was canceled.

Plate Umpire Doug Harvey had thrown the bat aside so that it wouldn't interfere with a possible play at the plate. Then he made the discovery — the bat had grooves in it.

"An illegal bat — it's as simple as that," said Harvey. "They (batters) use an ice pick, a can opener, something in between the grain of the wood. It gives the bat a grip. It's an old trick. It's happened before."

"I think it's silly," replied Dodgers Manager Walter Alston. "I don't think it helps a batter at all. I doubt if great hitters, Ruth, Musial, Aaron, did that to a bat."

"The most disgusting thing of all was wasting that kind of pitching," he said.

Gary Carter walked with one out in a 2-2 game and moved to third on Pete Mackanin's single. Then Marshall let fly the pitch that sent Carter home and led to two others.

Lopes, who had stolen three bases in the game and a major league record 38 in a row, wanted a fourth steal in the Dodgers' 12th. But he was cut down by catcher Carter, the last man to achieve the feat — on June 4 — before Lopes went on his record theft rampage.

Astros 8, Cubs 4

Jose Cruz hit two home runs and Cliff Johnson hit his fifth in the last five games to power the Astros past to an 8-4 victory over the Chicago Cubs. Bob Watson also cracked his 16th for Houston and Wilbur Howard had four hits. Andy Thornton homered for the Cubs.

Cardinals 6, Braves 2

"Speed is the name of the game, no matter what you're doing," said St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst after Lou Brock stole the 800th and 801st bases of his career and Willie Davis got out of a first-inning rundown to help the Cardinals roll over the Atlanta Braves.

Padres 7-7, Phillies 2-6

Randy Jones picked up 17th victory with an eight-hitter in the opener before Bobby Tolan's 12th-inning single completed the sweep for the Padres.

Al Geiberger Wins Golf Tournament

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — "I threw everything I had at him," sighed Dave Stockton. "It wasn't enough."

Some might call it fate. Certainly it was unusual, since Al Geiberger nearly bypassed Fort Worth because of the blazing Texas heat and other considerations.

But Stockton's critique best capsuled the climax of the $250,000 Tournament Players Championship, an event which some day may become one of the world's classics.

Stockton and Geiberger, his California hunting buddy, played Sunday like the TPC already was a kissin' cousin to the Masters, if not the U.S. Open.

It was literally a duel in the sun with Geiberger spurning Colonial's Trinity River treachery for a 69, a record 270 total and a three-shot victory over the bewildered Stockton.

It was a $50,000 triumph.

Stockton also shot a closing 69, but his was a 32-37 compared to Geiberger's 36-33. There's a dramatic difference.

Stockton was amazed at Geiberger's performance.

"If someone told me I was going to be seven under par on this course and not win ..." he said, his voice trailing in bewilderment. "Anybody else but Al would not have done as well under the pressure. I can't believe shooting five rounds under par."

For the record, which erased the three-decade-old mark of 272 by Clayton Hefner, it was 66-68-67-69-270, with a sizzling 63 in Wednesday's pro-am event. Not even Ben Hogan, a five-time winner at the normal springtime Colonial National Invitation here, recorded such numbers.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr. 20): Avoid extremes. Hold the line against confusion and chaos. Seek experienced counsel if stymied in any undertaking.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): In a desire for "greener pastures," you may tend to neglect routine responsibilities. Don't! Attend to "musts" first, and only then take on more desirable activities.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Note Taurus. Under present planetary influences, your advice similar. Be tactful, discreet in dealings with others.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Don't let the restrictions of routine dampen your ardor for achievement. But, on the other hand, don't overtax yourself. There are judicious limitations for all endeavors.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Line up obligations and handle them with confidence. In free moments, make plans for other activities. A good period in which to cultivate latent talents.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): This day can be a "knockout"! If you are looking for happiness through constructive achievement, you can register a solid victory now. Steady does it!

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): This day brings brand new opportunities to use your talents, to expand and benefit in various ways. Do make the most of it!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 22): You can MAKE the spotlight shine on you if you watch your step, put forth best efforts and project hope and confidence. There is a tendency to vacillate, however, Counteract — with steadfastness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Give of your know-how and experience and express your opinions if asked but, in the doing, avoid being critical or patronizing. Emphasize the positive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You may have a tendency toward lethargy now. Don't yield to it, since the best intentions in the world will produce nothing if not followed up by solid, constructive effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Just as the Capricornian, you, too, may have to discipline yourself sternly to keep on the road to accomplishment now. Be especially careful not to lose self-control if certain persons annoy you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Be patient if temporarily stymied in some project in which you are involved. Some new factors may be up for consideration. Keep eyes and ears open!

Hawaiians Top Chicago; Win 28-17

By The Associated Press
The Hawaiians would like to get some more yardage out of Duane Thomas, who showed in their lineup Saturday night. But the Philadelphia Bell is out to block Thomas from running for any other World Football club.

Thomas carried five times for 17 yards for the Hawaiians, who beat visiting Chicago 28-17 as Sonny Sixkiller fired three touchdown passes. Thomas' appearance was under a one-game agreement, according to WFL President Chris Hemminger.

Hawaiian officials said they hoped to sign the controversial Thomas to a regular contract. But Philadelphia General Manager Rich Iannarella said he had sent a telegram to the league saying the Bell would protest the signing of Thomas by any other WFL club.

Thomas played out his option with the National Football League's Washington Redskins. The WFL has assigned the Bell negotiating rights to Thomas and any other player released by Washington.

The Bell also made news Saturday night by upsetting Memphis 22-18 in Philadelphia, leaving the WFL without any unbeaten teams.

In other Saturday night games, Jacksonville beat San Antonio 26-19 in overtime, Southern California topped Birmingham 35-25 and Portland downed Shreveport 33-24.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — brothers-in-law; another "Beacon Hill," a new series daughter and a nephew of one which CBS is unveiling with a special two-hour episode tonight—9-11 p.m. EDT, is a granddaughter and his chauffeur.

There are also two visits by the chauffeur and Lassiter's one son to a brothel — where, by the way, just in case someone in the audience doesn't understand what profession these ladies are in, the writer has named the black madam Hortense.

Now if you're paying attention you'll note that in addition to all the other intrigue, there's a terrific blackmail angle here for the chauffeur. Beginning to get the drift? And this, mind you, is only the first episode.

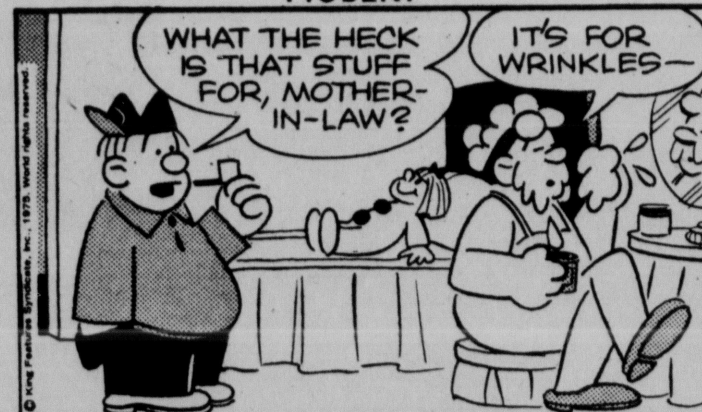

"Beacon Hill" is so lavishly produced and boasts such uniformly fine performances and meticulous attention to details of the period that it seems somehow weightier than a regular old soap.

A sidelight on how insane the television industry is: One of the CBS executives who played a key role in the development of "Beacon Hill" was Fred Silverman, head of programming. Since the schedule was announced, however, he has become president of ABC Entertainment and now is trying to sabotage the series.

Knowing the show is vulnerable in the early going because of its huge cast, Silverman is challenging it with a rerun of a successful ABC TV movie, "The Legend of Lizzie Borden" with Elizabeth Montgomery.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Never cross the street without looking."
"Never board a trolley while it is moving."
"Never drive on the wrong side of the road."

All of us have heard these words of wisdom at one time or another. They make good sense when they come from safety experts, who are accustomed to deal in broad generalizations.

But it's a different story in the courtroom. Courts, to do justice, must deal with specific individuals in specific situations. Courts deal with exceptions and anomalies and extenuating circumstances. And courts hardly ever say never.

Here are a few reasons why:
Crossing the street without looking was justifiable, one court ruled, because the pedestrian was relying on a green light.

Boarding a moving trolley was all right, ruled another court, because the passenger got a come-along wave from the conductor.

Driving on the wrong side of the road was permissible, ruled another court, because the motorist had to swerve to avoid hitting a child.

One judge who said never—and lived to regret it—was the famous Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. In a case involving a truck-train collision, Holmes held that a motorist who comes to a blind crossing should never proceed without first getting out of his car and walking forward to check the tracks.

This rule, he said with finality, would settle the matter "once and for all."

But the Holmes rule lasted less than seven years. So many exceptions arose, poking holes in his logic, that the Supreme Court finally had to throw it out.

The incident might well have reminded a chastened Holmes of a warning he himself had once voiced against overconfidence.

"We have been cocksure," he had said, "of many things that were not so."

5 Women Planning Ordination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five more women plan to be ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in defiance of their church's hierarchy.

The five women, all deacons of the Episcopal Church, have sent letters to each of the more than 200 bishops of the church notifying them of their plans, according to the Rev. Alison Palmer.

The Rev. Palmer, who also is director of the Office of International Labor Affairs for the State Department, said Sunday night that she and the other four women will be ordained Sept. 7 at St. Stephen and the Incarnation Church in Washington by the Rt. Rev. George W. Barrett, 67, former bishop of Rochester, N.Y., now living in Santa Barbara, Calif.

The Rev. Palmer described the forthcoming ordinations as "valid but irregular." The ordinations of 11 women July 29, 1974, in a Philadelphia ceremony later were ruled invalid by the church's House of Bishops.

"Nothing in Episcopal Church canon law prohibits ordination of women to the priesthood," the women said in their letter to the bishops. "Yet our diocesan bishops refuse to ordain us priests despite months of effort by us and by many in our dioceses to influence them to proceed," decided by a majority vote.

The church's bishops have agreed to withhold ordination from women until the church's General Convention meeting in 1976 can vote on the matter.

Jewelry Stolen From Alice Faye

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Alice Faye was enjoying a late snack at an East Side pub when someone broke into her chauffeured limousine and carted off two cosmetic cases containing about 20 pieces of jewelry.

Miss Faye, who estimated her loss from the theft early Sunday at $25,000, said many of the stolen articles were gifts from her husband, bandleader Phil Harris.

She said she was away from the car with her press agent, Jewel Baxter, and the chauffeur for about 40 minutes.

Ferguson pointed out that gasoline excise tax receipts can be used only for street and roadway purposes.

Dear Friends,

Ted Lewis, my beloved husband and your Son of Circleville, Ohio, passed away four years ago August 25, 1971. Since then I have received thousands of cards, letters and phone calls from his many admirers, family and loved ones these past few years.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank each and every one of you for your love and kindness. Mr. Lewis, in all his years as a Showman, whenever he was asked, "Where are you from?" would answer, "Why, Circleville, Ohio, the Capitol of the World!"

He would be happy in knowing you haven't forgotten him. Your Ted Lewis Museum in his honor is dear to my heart and millions of people in our country and around the world when they visit Circleville, Ohio.

Once again I wish to thank you for all your kindness. Thanks to Ben H. Gordon, former mayor of Circleville, David L. Yates, Treasurer, Present mayor Frank E. Barnhill, and ever so many others on the Board of the Museum, Judge William Ammer, Dick Tootle, and O. Charles Hosterman.

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR TUESDAY

ARIES (Mar 21 to Apr. 20): Avoid extremes. Hold the line against confusion and chaos. Seek experienced counsel if stymied in any undertaking.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 to May 21): In a desire for "greener pastures," you may tend to neglect routine responsibilities. Don't! Attend to "musts" first, and only then take on more desirable activities.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Note Taurus. Under present planetary influences, your advice similar. Be tactful, discreet in dealings with others.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Don't let the restrictions of routine dampen your ardor for achievement. But, on the other hand, don't overtax yourself. There are judicious limitations for all endeavors.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Line up obligations and handle them with confidence. In free moments, make plans for other activities. A good period in which to cultivate latent talents.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): This day can be a "knockout"! If you are looking for happiness through constructive achievement, you can register a solid victory now. Steady does it!

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): This day brings brand new opportunities to use your talents, to expand and benefit in various ways. Do make the most of it!

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): You can MAKE the spotlight shine on you if you watch your step, put forth best efforts and protect hope and confidence. There is a tendency toward vacillation, however, Counteract — with steadfastness.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Give of your know-how and experience and express your opinions if asked but, in the doing, avoid being critical or patronizing. Emphasize the positive.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): You may have a tendency toward lethargy now. Don't yield to it, since the best intentions in the world will produce nothing if not followed up by solid, constructive effort.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): Just as the Capricornian, you, too, may have to discipline yourself sternly to keep on the road to accomplishment now. Be especially careful not to lose self-control if certain persons annoy you.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): Be patient if temporarily stymied in some project in which you are involved. Some new factors may be up for consideration. Keep eyes and ears open!

YOU BORN TODAY are endowed with a magnetic personality, unusual artistry and excellent judgment; are also idealistic, intellectually inclined and remarkably intuitive. If attracted to writing as a profession, by all means train yourself for such a career, since you could be outstanding in the field. If you can overcome your tendency to be overly critical with those under your supervision, you would also make an excellent teacher. Other fields suited to your talents: the law, music, chemistry, statesmanship, science.

Hawaiians Top Chicago; Win 28-17

By The Associated Press
The Hawaiians would like to get some more yardage out of Duane Thomas, who showed in their lineup Saturday night. But the Philadelphia Bell is out to block Thomas from running for any other World Football club.

Thomas carried five times for 17 yards for the Hawaiians, who beat visiting Chicago 28-17 at Sonny Sikkler fired three touchdown passes. Thomas' appearance was under a one-game agreement, according to WFL President Chris Hemmeyer.

Hawaiian officials said they hoped to sign the controversial Thomas to a regular contract. But Philadelphia General Manager Rich Iannarella said he had sent a telegram to the league saying the Bell would protest the signing of Thomas by any other WFL club.

Thomas played out his option with the National Football League's Washington Redskins. The WFL has assigned the Bell negotiating rights to Thomas and any other player released by Washington.

The Bell also made news Saturday night by upsetting Memphis 22-18 in Philadelphia, leaving the WFL without any unbeaten teams.

In other Saturday night games, Jacksonville beat San Antonio 26-19 in overtime, Southern California topped Birmingham 35-25 and Portland downed Shreveport 33-24.

Views On Television

LOS ANGELES (AP) — brothers-in-law; another "Beacon Hill," a new series which CBS is unveiling with special two-hour episode tonight—9-11 p.m. EDT, is a well-crafted and mildly engaging piece of material based unabashedly on "Upstairs, Downstairs."

Like its critically acclaimed English sire, seen in this country on the Public Broadcasting Service, "Beacon Hill" contrasts the rich and the poor in a colorful historical context.

The setting here is Boston, 1920, the eve of Prohibition. The household is that of Benjamin Lassiter, rich and powerful patriarch of a large Irish-American family and employer of a horde of servants.

The program, in which Lassiter and his wife, Mary, return home from Europe and plan a big party to usher in Prohibition, begins slowly because there are something like 20 main characters to meet and somehow keep track of.

It takes about 30 or 40 minutes to sort out names and faces and the relationships, but after that the pace improves and it gets more interesting. There are some very funny moments interspersed with the drama.

In many respects, "Beacon Hill" is like a soap opera: lots of talk, little action, a preoccupation with people and their foibles — their faltering relationships, their drinking, their love affairs.

Especially their love affairs. Before the two hours are up we've learned of romantic entanglements between one of Benjamin Lassiter's four daughters and her voice teacher; the same daughter and one of her

There also are two visits by the chauffeur and Lassiter's son to a brothel — where, by the way, just in case someone in the audience doesn't understand what profession these ladies are in, the writer has named the black madam Hortense.

Now if you're paying attention you'll note that in addition to all the other intrigue, there's a terrific blackmail angle here for the chauffeur. Beginning to get the drift? And this, mind you, is only the first episode.

"Beacon Hill" is so lavishly produced and boasts such uniformly fine performances and meticulous attention to details of the period that it seems somehow swapper.

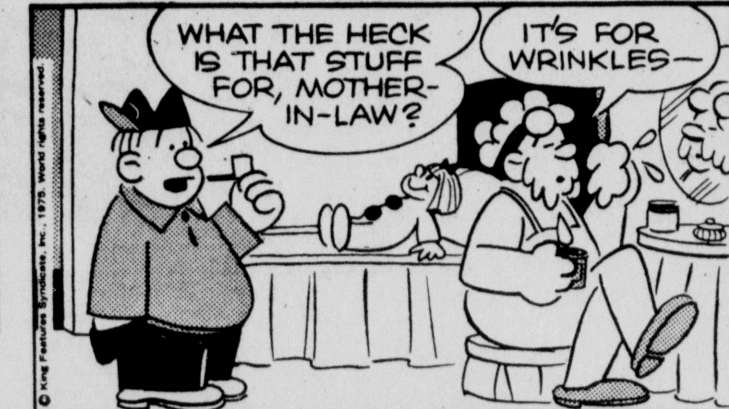

A sidelight on how insane the television industry is:

One of the CBS executives who played a key role in the development of "Beacon Hill" was Fred Silverman, head of programming. Since the schedule was announced, however, he has become president of ABC Entertainment and now is trying to sabotage the series.

Knowing the show is vulnerable in the early going because of its huge cast, Silverman is challenging it with a rerun of a successful ABC TV movie, "The Legend of Lizzie Borden" with Elizabeth Montgomery.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

"Never cross the street without looking."
 "Never board a trolley while it is moving."
 "Never drive on the wrong side of the road."

All of us have heard these words of wisdom at one time or another. They make good sense when they come from safety experts, who are accustomed to deal in broad generalizations.

But it's a different story in the courtroom. Courts, to do justice, must deal with specific individuals in specific situations. Courts deal with exceptions and anomalies and extenuating circumstances. And courts hardly ever say never.

Here are a few reasons why:
 Crossing the street without looking was justifiable, one court ruled, because the pedestrian was relying on a green light.

Boarding a moving trolley was all right, ruled another court, because the passenger got a come-along wave from the conductor.

Driving on the wrong side of the road was permissible, ruled another court, because the motorist had to swerve to avoid hitting a child.

One judge who said never—and lived to regret it—was the famous Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes. In a case involving a truck-train collision, Holmes held that a motorist who comes to a blind crossing should never proceed without first getting out of his car and walking forward to check the tracks.

This rule, he said with finality, would settle the matter "once and for all." But the Holmes rule lasted less than seven years. So many exceptions arose, poking holes in his logic, that the Supreme Court finally had to throw it out.

The incident might well have reminded a chastened Holmes of a warning he himself had once voiced against overconfidence.

"We have been cocksure," he had said, "of many things that were not so."

5 Women Planning Ordination

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five more women plan to be ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in defiance of their church's hierarchy.

The five women, all deacons of the Episcopal Church, have sent letters to each of the more than 200 bishops of the church notifying them of their plans, according to the Rev. Alison Palmer.

The Rev. Palmer, who also is director of the Office of International Labor Affairs for the State Department, said Sunday night that she and the other four women will be ordained Sept. 7 at St. Stephen and the Incarnation Church in Washington by the Rt. Rev. George W. Barrett, 67, former bishop of Rochester, N.Y., now living in Santa Barbara, Calif.

The Rev. Palmer described the forthcoming ordinations as "valid but irregular." The ordinations of 11 women July 29, 1974, in a Philadelphia ceremony later were ruled invalid by the church's House of Bishops.

"Nothing in Episcopal Church canon law prohibits ordination of women to the priesthood," the women said in their letter to the bishops. "Yet our diocesan bishops refuse to ordain us priests despite months of effort by us and by many in our dioceses to influence them to proceed," decided by a majority vote."

The church's bishops have agreed to withhold ordination from women until the church's General Convention meeting in 1976 can vote on the matter.

AT KROGER . . .
IT'S TOTAL SATISFACTION
GUARANTEED!

Everything we sell at Kroger is sold with a replacement or money back guarantee. And, we also guarantee that we will do everything in our power to have for sale every item we advertise.
If, due to conditions beyond our control we are temporarily out of stock on an advertised feature, we will do the following:

1. Substitute like product for like product.
2. Offer a Raincheck good for advertised items anytime within 30 days.

This message appears in all our price ads and this message is in the form of signs in all of our stores. It's our policy to offer total satisfaction and we invite you to check our policy book at the Store Manager's Office.

"Sell by September 1 . . ." OPEN DATED FOR FRESHNESS

At Kroger, you'll find freshness dates on some 1900 food products. Such as milk or eggs or bread.
Or packaged fresh meats and fresh fruits and vegetables. And even many other items other grocers don't date . . . like jelly, snack crackers or peanut butter.

What does this freshness date mean to you — the consumer? The easy-to-read month and day (unlike old-fashioned code dating) tells us — and you — the last day a product may be sold in our store.
That's so we're both sure the product will be fresh when you buy it and take it home . . . and fresh in your home for an average usage period (or longer).

At Kroger, we believe that consumers have the right to know more about the foods they buy. That's why we voluntarily began open-dating more foods than just about anybody else in the country. This is one more Kroger service designed to help you — the consumer.

We hear you and we're trying to help!
